St. Patrick: Zealous Missionary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Patrick, in his campaign to spread Christianity in Ireland, saw more of the Emerald Isle than many well-heeled American tourists do 15 centuries later. The zealous missionary traveled by boat, by ox-cart and on foot to combat the pagan power of the Druids.

Patrick's introduction to Ireland came when he was kidnaped by Irish raiders from his father's home in Britain. He was taken into bondage and served for six years as a sheepherder at Mount Slemish, north of what is now the city of Belfast. Patrick made his escape at the age of 22, got across the Gaul, now France, and studied for the priesthood at Auxerre.

He returned to Ireland with a burning desire to evangelize the country. Christianity already had gained a foothold but many of the Irish kings and chieftains encouraged nature worship and idolatry among their followers.

Fertile Irish imaginations have created many legends about the life and work of Patrick. Historians and biographers have had difficulty sorting out fact from fiction. But it is believed he came back to Ireland in the year 432.

Patrick built a church and monastery in Armagh in Ulster where he presided as bishop. With Armagh as a base, he traveled around the island, preaching, building churches and converting chiefs and their clans to Christianity.

His first religious efforts as a missionary bishop kept him occupied in the countries of Down and Antrim. Later he journeyed south of the site of the city of Dublin, through scenic Wicklow and Meath. Accounts of his trips read like a rollcall of Irish counties: Roscommon, Sligo, Mayo, Offaly, Donegal, Tipperary, Cork, Kerry, Clare. Just name the section and he probably was there as he crisscrossed Ireland preaching and debating for 30 years.

He did much along the coasts, persuading Irish sea raiders to give up the lucrative practice of seizing men from other countries and selling them into slavery. A victim of this system, he also reputedly talked many of the chiefs and landowners into freeing their bondsmen.

A highlight of Patrick's priestly achievements was his confrontation with Laoghaire, king who held sway over a large area of southern Ireland from his fortress-like place on the hill of Tara in Meath. Patrick vanquished Druid priests in an argument. Laoghaire was so impressed he put the Christian saint under his protection. But Loaghaire -- an ancestor of today's O'Learys -- didn't go all the way. He remained a pagan despite Patrick's pleas. Patrick had to be satisfied with the granting of freedom to pursue his evangelizing in the king's domain.

Did Patrick drive the snakes out of Ireland? Don't believe it, historians say, there never were any in that green, misty isle. Patrick's feats and mental not physical as he started Ireland on the way to being a nation of saints and scholars. The vigorous ex-slave lived about 76 years, died in 461, and was buried in Ireland on March 17, now St. Patrick's Day.

His accomplishments are summen up in writings attributed to Bishop Secundinus, a contemporary:

"Patrick frees captives from a twofold servitude; the great numbers from whom he liberates from bondage to men; these countless ones he frees from the yoke of the devil."

Governors Deny Secret Meeting

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Four Democratic governors deny a Kansas City Star story that they met in secret with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and discussed the serious threat President Johnson's renomination would pose for Midwest Democrats seeking reelection.

The closed discussion reportedly took place in Des Moines last Saturday night, the Star said.

Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas said it was a social gathering of 50 or 60 people, not a secret meeting. "It just isn't true," Gov. Harold Hughes of Iowa said.

"It was a social affair," he added. "We talked shop, but it was not a specific gathering for discussion on any single subject. There was no consensus reached and no effort to reach any."

Docking said, "We didn't urge Kennedy to run for the presidency. None of them that I heard urged him to run. I gathered that he would not run."

The press secretary for Gov. Warren Hearnes of Missouri, Jerry Bryan, was there and said, "I don't recall any remark about President Johnson's effect on Democratic candidates in the Midwest."

Gov. William Guy of North Dakota, said, "This topic of dumping Johnson was never brought up. Under no circumstances would I have met to discuss the President under the terms described."

The Star, in its copyrighted story Wednesday night, said Guy, Hearnes and Hughes were reported to have told Kennedy the President's renomination would present an obstacle for Democratic candidates up for reelection in their areas. Docking is said to have commented he had some reservations about Johnson's chances in Kansas.

Guy, Docking and Bryan, speaking for Hearnes, said the governors and their aides attended a campaign dinner Saturday night in Des Moines for Hughes who has announced for the U.S. Senate . Kennedy was the dinner speaker. The social they spoke of followed later in a hotel suite.

"We discussed an assessment of public feeling in the Midwest," Hughes said, "but I do not recall Gov. Guy or Gov. Hearnes or myself ever saying or implying that President Johnson's nomination would be a serious obstacle."

McCormally is reported to have urged the senator to become an active candidate for the Democratic p r esidential nomination.

Kennedy has a speaking date Monday at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kan., where he will deliver a "Landon Lecture," held in honor of former Kansas Gov. Alfred M. Landon.

Kennedy will fly to Topeka Sunday after participating in the annual St. Patrick's Day parade. He will attend a reception of the Democratic party's Century Club-party members who have contributed $100 or more annually to the state party coffers- and go to Manhattan Monday morning.

Knee and Hand Injuries Treated

Two were treated Wednesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room:

Carl Rampley, Oran, cut right hand on furnace; Varlon Browning, Anniston, struck right knee on trailer hitch.

Train Strikes Car, Woman Injured

A Caruthersville woman was injured when her car was struck by a Frisco freight train in Hayti, and a Cape Girardeau pedestrain was struck by a pickup truck as he walked across highway 61, south of Perryville.

Marjorie Lous Stewart, 43, Caruthersville, driver of a 1965 Buick approached a railroad track. A building obscured the trains approach.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 3:50 p.m. on highway 84 in Hayti.

The woman received a shoulder injury and a possible neck injury.

Robert Moore, 64, Chaffee, was the engineer.

Edmund Wibbenmeyer, 58, Friedheim, parked his car on a shoulder at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday on highway 61, two and one half miles south of Perryville. He was walking across the highway when he was struck by a 1960 Ford pickup truck, driven by Edwith Fritsche, 66, Frohna.

Wibbenmeyer was taken to the Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where he was treated for injuries to his head, ribs and possible internal injuries.

Hearnes Reports Contact by Kennedy Aide

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)-- Gov. Warren Hearnes said Wednesday he had been contacted by an associate of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., on the attitude of Missouri Democrats toward the possibility of Kennedy running for president.

The governor told of the incident in a taped television interview. He described the Kennedy associate as a personal friend of his as well.

"I told the man that I don't feel qualified to speak for the Democratic party in Missouri," Hearnes said. "I would have to consult with local party leaders and place myself in the position of a pollster in order to obtain the information."

During the interview, the governor said he did not think there was any division within the Democratic party in the state, not on state politics.

Lions Club Nominates Officer Slate

A slate of new officers for the Lions club was placed in nomination at the Wednesday noon meeting by Committee Chairman Jack Hogan, and members Charles Mitchell and Bernard Rice.

Nominated for 1968-69 were president, Henry Bussey, first vice president, John Duncan; second vice president, Earl Arthur; third vice president, Bob Jenkins; secretary-treasurer, Leon Garnett; tail twister, Meredith Lee; assistant tail twister, Jim Sickal; den keeper, Bill O'Guinn; assistant den keeper, Armand Gemeinhardt and director, George Hale.

An election will be held March 27. The officers elected will take office at the first meeting in July.

Outgoing president is Wallace Waters.

Gold Rush Skyrockets

Mayor Joins in Turnpike Plea

Mayor Kendall Sikes joined with the mayors of seven other Missouri cities in expressing a keen interest and a pledge of cooperation with a feasibility study for a north-south turnpike.

Sikes signed a letter containing the signatures of seven other mayors stating they are interested in a possible turnpike from the northern to the southern border of Missouri along the corridor of U.S. 63 with access routes to south Missouri's growing mineral industry area and the industrial and agricultural area in Southeast Missouri.

The turnpike also would open up large recreational areas in the Ozarks not readily accessible now, the letter states.

The letter was addressed to Jack Stapleton, chairman of the Missouri Turnpike Aurthority in Stanberry.

Other officials who signed the letters are the mayors of Kirksville, Moberly, Columbia, Jefferson City, Rolla, West Plains and Thayer.

Water District Vote Set for March 30

NEW MADRID - Since Judge William R. Ragland ruled in favor of the establishment of water district 4 for Canalou and the Morehouse Delmo Colony unit Monday, the date for $200,000 bond issue election has been set for March 30, according to Charles Hatley.

Judges and clerks of election appointed for the two polling places are Canalou, John Nancy; Clarence Laster, Cliff Dismuke and Pauline Landers; and Morehouse Delmo Colony, Mrs. Billy Harrison, Mrs. Maye King, Mrs. Marshall Northcutt and Mrs. Slavel Westfall.

The water district comprises Canalou and the area north and including the Morehouse colony, covering a distance of seven miles. The cost would entail seven miles of distribution lines, a water tank, well and treatment plant.

The district would serve 177 families and costs would be paid from water receipts over 30 years.

Sales Levels Soar

LONDON (AP) - Europe's gold rush skyrocketed today in a buying spree that economic experts said threatens monetary anarchy.

London, Paris, Zurich and even the normally small Frankfurt market reported levels of sales that dealers had never dreamed possible.

Paris, where sales normally are two to three tons, had more than 40 tons. This was more than twice Wednesday's record high of 16 tons. The Bank of France was hard pressed to fill the demand. London dealers expected sale to top 200 tons.

There was a stampede for gold in Zurich. Frankfurt bankers said there was an unprecedented demand for bullion, gold certificates and coins.

Dealers and both bullion and foreign exchange markets reported a complete collapse of confidence in paper money.

The pattern of sales in all markets showed the buyers were snatching up gold, silver and platinum in any sizes of ingots or coins.

This was an indication that even the grocer on the corner was switching his savings into something he considered safer and more solid than paper money.

"Only firm action by the United States to reduce its foreign payments deficit can now restore public confidence," one market observer commented.

Other sources expected either a complete breakdown of the seven-nation gold pool or official curtailment of sales. London dealers were frantically attempting to calm the panic and were making buyers pay higher and higher prices for the metal.

European financial circles looked to the United States to check the rush on gold. But despite warnings from European experts that the postwar prosperity was in danger of collapse, there was no prospect of immediate action in Washington.

London dealers added a full 5 cents to the price fixed at the opening and still sales were "absolutely fantastic," one said.

More than 50 tons were sold at the daily fixing, when the price was set just under the ceiling at $35.19⅞. Dealers were selling at $35.25, however.

The pound opened at $2,39125, quickly dropped to $2.3910 and then went to its lowest level ever- $2.3896.

Exchange dealers said the market was a shambles with no demand for sterling.

Both the pound and the dollar were down in Frankfurt. In Paris the dollar was fairly steady but the pound lost 170 points, dropping to 11.7800 francs.

More than 15 tons of gold, a record, was sold in Paris Wednesday, and orders by midmorning indicated an even greater demand today.

The Johnson administration appeared to be relying on the proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge, and the bill to lift the 25 per cent gold cover for U.S. currency, both of which are a long way from congressional passage. U.S. officials said further shock waves can be expected until the international money system is reformed.

Gold buying reached near panic proportions in European markets Wednesday, and there was no sign of the rush abating.

London bullion dealers sharply curtailed trading so they could catch up with their backlog of orders as demand passed the 100-ton mark.

Hoarders and speculators were gambling that the United States would not be able to hold the price of gold at $35 an ounce.

Peter Jay, economics editor of the London Times, wrote of the "extraordinary psychological flaw in the 20th century man which can induce almost the whole civilized world simultaneously to risk and perhaps destroy the whole basis of its prosperity in a fit of self-immolation."

Governor Will Attend Rally

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will attend a 9 a.m. Saturday meeting of the Bootheel Democratic Club at the El Capri Restaurant, Frank Ferrell, club treasurer, said today.

Purpose of the meeting is to plan for a fall Democratic rally in the 10th district. All chairmen of the Democratic county committees in the 21 counties of the 10th district have been invited to the breakfast meeting.

State Senator J. F. (Pat) Patterson, Caruthersville, president of the club, and members of the 10th district Democratic committee will attend. Committee members are Flake McHaney, Kennett; Harry Warren Jr., Charleston, Hal E. Hunter Jr., New Madrid; Mrs. Cornelia Shuford, Chaffee; Mrs. Wilma Ringer, Dexter, and Mrs. Margaret Martin, Jackson.

Counties within the 10th district are Ste. Genevive, St. Francois, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Perry, Iron, Madison, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Butler, Wayne, Shannon, Ripley, Howell, Carter, Reynolds, and Oregon.

Insurance Bids Will Be Opened

Bids for the life and hospitalization insurance coverage of about 100 city employes will be opened at 4:30 p.m. March 25 at the city administration building by the city insurance committee.

Maurice Hixon, committee chairman, said the present hospitalization coverage is inadequate. More coverage is being sought to keep pace with increasing hospitalization and medical costs, he said.

No increase is sought in the life insurance coverage. It is a $2,000 policy per city employe.

The city pays half of the insurance costs for subscribing employes.

McCarthy Sees LBJ Aided by RFK Entry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy said today that if Sen. Robert F. Kennedy enters the Democratic presidential race, the action might divide opponents of the Vietnam war and help toward renominating President Johnson.

McCarthy, fresh from a strong showing in New Hampshire's primary Tuesday, insisted he is in the race to stay and has no plan to step aside for Kennedy. Both oppose the administration's Vietnam policy.

As if to emphasize his determination, McCarthy announced he is entering the May 7 Indiana and June 4 South Dakota primaries.

He said he will meet with supporters in Indianapolis Saturday. He has until March 28 to enter formally and to meet the requirement of petitions bearing 500 signatures from each of the 11 congressional districts.

In Indiana, McCarthy probably will be facing Gov. Roger Branigan, who has said he would run in order to hold the 60-seat convention delegation for President Johnson.

Kennedy, who announced Wednesday he was reassessing his situation, declined further comment today. "I'm not having anything further to say," he told newsmen.

In a corridor news conference, McCarthy was asked if he thought a Kennedy candidacy would split the peace movement. "I expect it would," McCarthy said.

He was then asked if he thought this would help President Johnson's chances of winning renomination at this summer's Democratic National Convention. He shook his head and then repeated: "I expect it would."

Later, at a news conference of graduate students who presented him with an award, McCarthy said a Kennedy candidacy "makes it a little less likely that we would have strength on the first ballot."

The presence of a Kennedy ticket and a McCarthy ticket in the June 4 California primary, he noted, would almost certainly throw that state's delegation to Johnson.

As to whether he would step aside in Kennedy's favor, McCarthy said "I have said at least 20 times— I don't have in mind (becoming) a dropout."

He said that phone consultations have indicated his supporters plan to stick with him. "They have no intention of yielding any ground. The flags are all flying today."

McCarthy said he did not know what motivated Kennedy's announcement Wednesday he would reassess his own position.

"He might have thought some of his supporters would move over to my camp," the Minnesota senator said.

He said he thinks "there is a possibility" President Johnson can be stopped from renomination and said "We may have more delegates from the nonprimary states than from the primary states."

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall minimized, meantime, that significance of the New Hampshire primary results, which gave McCarthy 42 per cent of the Democratic vote and 20 of the state's 24 convention delegate seats.

He predicted Johnson would be renominated and that McCarthy would support the President. McCarthy, Udall said, "is not a man of rancor; he's a man of great character."

Five Run for Police Judge In New Madrid

NEW MADRID - With the filing Monday of O. W. "Orb" Lewis for police judge in the election April 2, five candidates are now seeking the office being vacated by Judge J. S. "Hoppi" Bledsoe. Bledsoe has held the office for 22 years and is not seeking re-election.

Candidates previously filing were Billy B. Thompson, Herschel Lott, Richard Pierce and T. A. "Buddy" Cruchon.

The city council passed an ordiance at the last board meeting reducing the salary of the police judge from $125 to $60 a month.

Other incumbents filing for re-election are James Helms, alderman Ward 1; Jack Long, city collector, and O. E. Householder, city marshal.

Mayor Robert A. Riley, Ward 2 alderman Bob Blom and Ward 3 alderman Dick Phillips Jr., whose terms expire, have not yet announced their candidacy.

Deadline for filing is March 18.

Three Michigan Men Held in Theft of Car

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Three Michigan men were apprehended at 3:05 a.m. today, in a 1960 English Ford. Officers charged the car had been stolen from Charles Hollingsworth, Cooter, one and a half hours earlier.

Apprehended by Trooper Dennis Lewis and Sgt. Ruben Templeton at the junction of Interstate-55 and 57 were Glenn D. Spicer, 19, and Earl Spitler, 20, both of Ionia, Mich., and Alfred Childs, 19, Lyons, Mich.

A car with three men stopped at the Cross Oil company in Portageville. The car was filled with gas and proceeded north without paying an attendant.

An alert was put out. The officers stopped the men at the Miner intersection, and brought them to the city jail, where they are being held.

Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton notified police he would take the prisoners to Caruthersville, where they will be charged with car theft.

Appropriation Fund To Leave Reserve Of $38.9 Million

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's special legislative session appropriated a total of $1,200,332,332 compared with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' recommendation of $1,198,375,977.

Since the capital improvements bill did not pass, the legislative fiscal affairs office reported today that left an operating reserve of $38,996,228 in general revenue (tax) funds.

If the building bill had passed, this reserve would have been cut to around $3 million.

For general operations the Legislature appropriated $1,191,260,961 compared with the governor's recommendation of $1,188,304,606. The rest went into the final catch-all or omnibus bill to cover new laws passed by the special session.

Custodians Praised For Post Office Care

The citation for excellence announced Monday for the Post Office was determined after a series of inspections of the grounds and building, which began in September and October, Postmaster Don Pasaka said.

"The citation reflects on the efficiency of the custodians more than anything else," Pasaka said.

Pictures of the grounds and office were sent to the regional office in St. Louis and they sent inspectors to investigate before sending their recommendation for the citation to Washington, D. D., Assistant Postmaster Ewart Taylor said.

The landscaping, flowers, appearance of the grounds as well as the interior of the post office was inspected.

Custodians employed here are: Joe Sherrod, Hugh Aldrich and Tom Ledbetter.

Fowler Says Big Tax Hike Urgently Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler declared today it is necessary that Congress pass a big income tax increase within 30 days.

While he was testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, gold sales in Europe skyrocketed, and market observers said only firm action by the United States could restore public confidence.

Fowler told the committee he would welcome a tax hike more than twice as big as the 10 per cent surcharge proposed by President Johnson.

This development came as Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., suggested that it would be a good idea to go back to the income tax rates prevailing before they were reduced in 1964.

Fowler said this would bring in about $22 billion a year compared with the $10 billion in the President's proposal and added: "I would welcome this."

The secretary said that five factors made it urgent to get the income tax increase on the books at once:

1. "The highly volatile situation in the international monetary markets now is threatening the very preservation of the international monetary system as we know it."

2. "Clear indication that the Federal Reserve is on the move in the direction of increased mometary restraint because of the failure to pass a tax bill."

3. "It is now clear we may be faced with increased federal expenditures beyond the figures in the President's budget submitted in January because of events in the intervening period in Vietnam."

4. "The increased pace of the economy generally calls for more restraint."

5. "Our trade surplus is being reduced to an extent that may offset the efforts we are making to reduce our balance of payments deficit contained in the President's New Year's Day message."

Total U.S. Combat Deaths In Viet Top 20,000

SAIGON (AP) — American combat deaths through seven years of war in Vietnam evidently have passed the 20,000 mark. The U.S. Command reported today the toll as of last Saturday was 19,760. Scores have fallen in action since.

The U.S. death toll topped 500 last week for the third time in four weeks.

Later in the day a U.S. headquarters spokesman reduced the estimate to 207,000 to 220,000 but the reduction of 16,000 to 28,000 was a lot less than the 55,000 enemy dead which the U.S. Command has claimed since Jan. 1.

The command said 509 Americans were killed in combat and 2,766 were wounded last week, compared with 542 killed and 2,191 wounded the previous week.

In the week of Feb. 11-17, the number of Americans killed was the highest of the war— 543. There were 470 killed in the week of Feb. 18-24.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 418 government troops killed last week, 1,199 wounded and 98 missing or captured. This was a sharp rise over the week before, when 139 were reported killed, 779 wounded and 92 missing.

The U.S. Command reported that allied forces killed 4,335 of the enemy last week, while the South Vietnamese said 5,327 were killed and 488 captured. Discrepancies in the report of enemy casualties by the two commands is not unusual.

Breakin At Junior High

A break-in was reported at 8:40 a.m. today at the Sikeston junior high school. The teacher workshop was entered and machines were reported to have been broken into, but an estimate of what was taken was not available, police said.

In other activity, Cletus Ray Counts, Charleston, was arrested at 8:14 p.m. Wednesday on South Main St. and charged with driving while intoxicated. Edward L. Golightly, Charleston, was arrested with Counts and charged with public intoxication.

Two accidents were worked by police Wednesday: A car driven by Samuel Vinson, 73, 305 Branum St., struck the rear of a car stopped on Murray Lane at South Kingshighway at 4:10 p. m., police reported. The stopped car was driven by David Moyers, 17, 610 Dempster St. No injuries resulted and no charges were filed.

A car driven by Ira D. Clayton, 60, 210 Williams, sideswiped an automobile driven by Suzane Aarant, 17, route two, Sikeston on East Malone near East street, police reported. Both cars were traveling east on Malone when the mishap occurred. The Aarant vehicle was in the right hand traffic lane. No one was injured and no summons was issued.

Cancer Drive Kickoff Set For March 27

MORLEY - The kickoff dinner for the April Cancer Crusade in Scott county will be held March 27 at the Morley Cafe.

The announcement was made by county chairman George Dye, in a meeting of city crusade chairmen at Dye's house.

Attending were John W. Davis, president of the County Cancer society, Don Wisdom, Sikeston chairman, Mrs. John Schmitt, Illmo-Scott City chairman, the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Golden, Chaffee chairman, and Mrs. Lyman Bollinger, Kelso chairman.

Accounts of his trips read like a rollcall of Irish counties: Roscommon, Sligo, Mayo, Offaly, Donegal, Tipperary, Cork, Kerry, Clare. Just name the section and he probably was there as he crisscrossed Ireland preaching and debating for 30 years.

He did much along the coasts, persuading Irish sea raiders to give up the lucrative practice of seizing men from other countries and selling them into slavery. A victim of this system, he also reputedly talked many of the chiefs and landowners into freeing their bondsmen.

A highlight of Patrick's priestly achievements was his confrontation with Laoghaire, king who held sway over a large area of southern Ireland from his fortress-like place on the hill of Tara in Meath. Patrick vanquished Druid priests in an argument. Laoghaire was so impressed he put the Christian saint under his protection. But Loaghaire -- an ancestor of today's O'Learys -- didn't go all the way. He remained a pagan despite Patrick's pleas. Patrick had to be satisfied with the granting of freedom to pursue his evangliziing in the king's domain.

Did Patrick drive the snakes out of Ireland? Don't believe it, historians say, there never were any in that green, misty isle. Patrick's feats and mental not physical as he started Ireland on the way to being a nation of saints and scholars. The vigorous ex-slave lived about 76 years, died in 461, and was buried in Ireland on March 17, now St. Patrick's Day.

His accomplishments are summen up in writings attributed to Bishop Secundinus, a contemporary:

"Patrick frees captives from a twofold servitude; the great numbers from whom he liberates from bondage to men; these countless ones he frees from the yoke of the devil."

Governors Deny Secret Meeting

KANSAS CITY (AP) - Four Democratic governors deny a Kansas City Star story that they met in secret with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and discussed the serious threat President Johnson's renomination would pose for Midwest Democrats seeking reelection.

The closed discussion reportedly took place in Des Moines last Saturday night, the Star said.

Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas said it was a social gathering of 50 or 60 people, not a secret meeting. "It just isn't true," Gov. Harold Hughes of Iowa said.

"It was a social affair," he added. "We talked shop, but it was not a specific gathering for discussion on any single subject. There was no consensus reached and no effort to reach any."

Docking said, "We didn't urge Kennedy to run for the presidency. None of them that I heard urged him to run. I gathered that he would not run."

The press secretary for Gov. Warren Hearnes of Missouri, Jerry Bryan, was there and said, "I don't recall any remark about President Johnson's effect on Democratic candidates in the Midwest."

Gov. William Guy of North Dakota, said, "This topic of dumping Johnson was never brought up. Under no circumstances would I have met to discuss the President under the terms described."

The Star, in its copyrighted story Wednesday night, said Guy, Hearnes and Hughes were reported to have told Kennedy the President's renomination would present an obstacle for Democratic candidates up for reelection in their areas. Docking is said to have commented he had some reservations about Johnson's chances in Kansas.

Guy, Docking and Bryan, speaking for Hearnes, said the governors and their aides attended a campaign dinner Saturday night in Des Moines for Hughes who has announced for the U.S. Senate . Kennedy was the dinner speaker. The social they spoke of followed later in a hotel suite.

"We discussed an assessment of public feeling in the Midwest," Hughes said, "but I do not recall Gov. Guy or Gov. Hearnes or myself ever saying or implying that President Johnson's nomination would be a serious obstacle."

McCormally is reported to have urged the senator to become an active candidate for the Democratic p r esidential nomination.

Kennedy has a speaking date Monday at Kansas State University in Manhattan, Kan., where he will deliver a "Landon Lecture," held in honor of former Kansas Gov. Alfred M. Landon.

Kennedy will fly to Topeka Sunday after participating in the annual St. Patrick's Day parade. He will attend a reception of the Democratic party's Century Club-party members who have contributed $100 or more annually to the state party coffers and go to Manhattan Monday morning.

Knee and Hand Injuries Treated

Two were treated Wednesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital emergency room:

Carl Rampley, Oran, cut right hand on furnace; Varlon Browning, Anniston, struck right knee on trailer hitch.

Train Strikes Car, Woman Injured

A Caruthersville woman was injured when her car was struck by a Frisco freight train in Hayti, and a Cape Girardeau pedestrain was struck by a pickup truck as he walked across highway 61, south of Perryville.

Marjorie Lous Stewart, 43, Caruthersville, driver of a 1965 Buick approached a railroad track. A building obscured the trains approach.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 3:50 p.m. on highway 84 in Hayti.

The woman received a shoulder injury and a possible neck injury.

Robert Moore, 64, Chaffee, was the engineer.

Edmund Wibbenmeyer, 58, Friedheim, parked his car on a shoulder at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday on highway 61, two and one half miles south of Perryville. He was walking across the highway when he was struck by a 1960 Ford pickup truck, driven by Edwith Fritsche, 66, Frohna.

Wibbenmeyer was taken to the Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where he was treated for injuries to his head, ribs and possible internal injuries.

Hearnes Reports Contact by Kennedy Aide

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)-- Gov. Warren Hearnes said Wednesday he had been contacted by an associate of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., on the attitude of Missouri Democrats toward the possibility of Kennedy running for president.

The governor told of the incident in a taped television interview. He described the Kennedy associate as a personal friend of his as well.

"I told the man that I don't feel qualified to speak for the Democratic party in Missouri," Hearnes said. "I would have to consult with local party leaders and place myself in the position of a pollster in order to obtain the information."

During the interview, the governor said he did not think there was any division within the Democratic party in the state, not on state politics.

Lions Club Nominates Officer Slate

A slate of new officers for the Lions club was placed in nomination at the Wednesday noon meeting by Committee Chairman Jack Hogan, and members Charles Mitchell and Bernard Rice.

Nominated for 1968-69 were president, Henry Bussey, first vice president, John Duncan; second vice president, Earl Arthur; third vice president, Bob Jenkins; secretary-treasurer, Leon Garnett; tail twister, Meredith Lee; assistant tail twister, Jim Sickal; den keeper, Bill O'Guinn; assistant den keeper, Armand Gemeinhardt and director, George Hale.

An election will be held March 27. The officers elected will take office at the first meeting in July.

Outgoing president is Wallace Waters.

Gold Rush Skyrockets

Mayor Joins in Turnpike Plea

Mayor Kendall Sikes joined with the mayors of seven other Missouri cities in expressing a keen interest and a pledge of cooperation with a feasibility study for a north-south turnpike.

Sikes signed a letter containing the signatures of seven other mayors stating they are interested in a possible turnpike from the northern to the southern border of Missouri along the corridor of U.S. 63 with access routes to south Missouri's growing mineral industry area and the industrial and agricultural area in Southeast Missouri.

The turnpike also would open up large recreational areas in the Ozarks not readily accessible now, the letter states.

The letter was addressed to Jack Stapleton, chairman of the Missouri Turnpike Aurthority in Stanberry.

Other officials who signed the letters are the mayors of Kirksville, Moberly, Columbia, Jefferson City, Rolla, West Plains and Thayer.

Water District Vote Set for March 30

NEW MADRID - Since Judge William R. Ragland ruled in favor of the establishment of water district 4 for Canalou and the Morehouse Delmo Colony unit Monday, the date for $200,000 bond issue election has been set for March 30, according to Charles Hatley.

Judges and clerks of election appointed for the two polling places are Canalou, John Nancy; Clarence Laster, Cliff Dismuke and Pauline Landers; and Morehouse Delmo Colony, Mrs. Billy Harrison, Mrs. Maye King, Mrs. Marshall Northcutt and Mrs. Slavel Westfall.

The water district comprises Canalou and the area north and including the Morehouse colony, covering a distance of seven miles. The cost would entail seven miles of distribution lines, a water tank, well and treatment plant.

The district would serve 177 families and costs would be paid from water receipts over 30 years.

McCarthy Sees LBJ Aided by RFK Entry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy said today that if Sen. Robert F. Kennedy enters the Democratic presidential race, the action might divide opponents of the Vietnam war and help toward renominating President Johnson.

McCarthy, fresh from a strong showing in New Hampshire's primary Tuesday, insisted he is in the race to stay and has no plan to step aside for Kennedy. Both oppose the administration's Vietnam policy.

As if to emphasize his determination, McCarthy announced he is entering the May 7 Indiana and June 4 South Dakota primaries.

He said he will meet with supporters in Indianapolis Saturday. He has until March 28 to enter formally and to meet the requirement of petitions bearing 500 signatures from each of the 11 congressional districts.

In Indiana, McCarthy probably will be facing Gov. Roger Branigan, who has said he would run in order to hold the 60-seat convention delegation for President Johnson.

Kennedy, who announced Wednesday he was reassessing his situation, declined further comment today. "I'm not having anything further to say," he told newsmen.

In a corridor news conference, McCarthy was asked if he thought a Kennedy candidacy would split the peace movement. "I expect it would," McCarthy said.

He was then asked if he thought this would help President Johnson's chances of winning renomination at this summer's Democratic National Convention. He shook his head and then repeated: "I expect it would."

Later, at a news conference of graduate students who presented him with an award, McCarthy said a Kennedy candidacy "makes it a little less likely that we would have strength on the first ballot."

The presence of a Kennedy ticket and a McCarthy ticket in the June 4 California primary, he noted, would almost certainly throw that state's delegation to Johnson.

As to whether he would step aside in Kennedy's favor, McCarthy said "I have said at least 20 times— I don't have in mind (becoming) a dropout."

He said that phone consultations have indicated his supporters plan to stick with him. "They have no intention of yielding any ground. The flags are all flying today."

McCarthy said he did not know what motivated Kennedy's announcement Wednesday he would reassess his own position.

"He might have thought some of his supporters would move over to my camp," the Minnesota senator said.

He said he thinks "there is a possibility" President Johnson can be stopped from renomination and said "We may have more delegates from the nonprimary states than from the primary states."

Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall minimized, meantime, that significance of the New Hampshire primary results, which gave McCarthy 42 per cent of the Democratic vote and 20 of the state's 24 convention delegate seats.

He predicted Johnson would be renominated and that McCarthy would support the President. McCarthy, Udall said, "is not a man of rancor; he's a man of great character."

Five Run for Police Judge In New Madrid

NEW MADRID - With the filing Monday of O. W. "Orb" Lewis for police judge in the election April 2, five candidates are now seeking the office being vacated by Judge J. S. "Hoppi" Bledsoe. Bledsoe has held the office for 22 years and is not seeking re-election.

Candidates previously filing were Billy B. Thompson, Herschel Lott, Richard Pierce and T. A. "Buddy" Cruchon.

The city council passed an ordiance at the last board meeting reducing the salary of the police judge from $125 to $60 a month.

Other incumbents filing for re-election are James Helms, alderman Ward 1; Jack Long, city collector, and O. E. Householder, city marshal.

Mayor Robert A. Riley, Ward 2 alderman Bob Blom and Ward 3 alderman Dick Phillips Jr., whose terms expire, have not yet announced their candidacy.

Deadline for filing is March 18.

Three Michigan Men Held in Theft of Car

CARUTHERSVILLE -- Three Michigan men were apprehended at 3:05 a.m. today, in a 1960 English Ford. Officers charged the car had been stolen from Charles Hollingsworth, Cooter, one and a half hours earlier.

Apprehended by Trooper Dennis Lewis and Sgt. Ruben Templeton at the junction of Interstate-55 and 57 were Glenn D. Spicer, 19, and Earl Spitler, 20, both of Ionia, Mich., and Alfred Childs, 19, Lyons, Mich.

A car with three men stopped at the Cross Oil company in Portageville. The car was filled with gas and proceeded north without paying an attendant.

An alert was put out. The officers stopped the men at the Miner intersection, and brought them to the city jail, where they are being held.

Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton notified police he would take the prisoners to Caruthersville, where they will be charged with car theft.

Sales Levels Soar

LONDON (AP) - Europe's gold rush skyrocketed today in a buying spree that economic experts said threatens monetary anarchy.

London, Paris, Zurich and even the normally small Frankfurt market reported levels of sales that dealers had never dreamed possible.

Paris, where sales normally are two to three tons, had more than 40 tons. This was more than twice Wednesday's record high of 16 tons. The Bank of France was hard pressed to fill the demand. London dealers expected sale to top 200 tons.

There was a stampede for gold in Zurich. Frankfurt bankers said there was an unprecedented demand for bullion, gold certificates and coins.

Dealers and both bullion and foreign exchange markets reported a complete collapse of confidence in paper money.

The pattern of sales in all markets showed the buyers were snatching up gold, silver and platinum in any sizes of ingots or coins.

This was an indication that even the grocer on the corner was switching his savings into something he considered safer and more solid than paper money.

"Only firm action by the United States to reduce its foreign payments deficit can now restore public confidence," one market observer commented.

Other sources expected either a complete breakdown of the seven-nation gold pool or official curtailment of sales. London dealers were frantically attempting to calm the panic and were making buyers pay higher and higher prices for the metal.

European financial circles looked to the United States to check the rush on gold. But despite warnings from European experts that the postwar prosperity was in danger of collapse, there was no prospect of immediate action in Washington.

London dealers added a full 5 cents to the price fixed at the opening and still sales were "absolutely fantastic," one said.

More than 50 tons were sold at the daily fixing, when the price was set just under the ceiling at $35.19⅞. Dealers were selling at $35.25, however.

The pound opened at $2.39125, quickly dropped to $2.3910 and then went to its lowest level ever— $2.3896.

Exchange dealers said the market was a shambles with no demand for sterling.

Both the pound and the dollar were down in Frankfurt. In Paris the dollar was fairly steady but the pound lost 170 points, dropping to 11.7800 francs.

More than 15 tons of gold, a record, was sold in Paris Wednesday, and orders by mid-morning indicated an even greater demand today.

The Johnson administration appeared to be relying on the proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge, and the bill to lift the 25 per cent gold cover for U.S. currency, both of which are a long way from congressional passage. U.S. officials said further shock waves can be expected until the international money system is reformed.

Gold buying reached near panic proportions in European markets Wednesday, and there was no sign of the rush abating.

London bullion dealers sharply curtailed trading so they could catch up with their backlog of orders as demand passed the 100-ton mark.

Hoarders and speculators were gambling that the United States would not be able to hold the price of gold at $35 an ounce.

Peter Jay, economics editor of the London Times, wrote of the "extraordinary psychological flaw in the 20th century man which can induce almost the whole civilized world simultaneously to risk and perhaps destroy the whole basis of its prosperity in a fit of self-immolation."

Appropriation Fund To Leave Reserve Of $38.9 Million

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Missouri's special legislative session appropriated a total of $1,200,332,332 compared with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' recommendation of $1,198,375,977.

Since the capital improvements bill did not pass, the legislative fiscal affairs office reported today that left an operating reserve of $38,996,228 in general revenue (tax) funds.

If the building bill had passed, this reserve would have been cut to around $3 million.

For general operations the Legislature appropriated $1,191,260,961 compared with the governor's recommendation of $1,188,304,606. The rest went into the final catch-all or omnibus bill to cover new laws passed by the special session.

Custodians Praised For Post Office Care

The citation for excellence announced Monday for the Post Office was determined after a series of inspections of the grounds and building, which began in September and October, Postmaster Don Pasaka said.

"The citation reflects on the efficiency of the custodians more than anything else," Pasaka said.

Pictures of the grounds and office were sent to the regional office in St. Louis and they sent inspectors to investigate before sending their recommendation for the citation to Washington, D. D., Assistant Postmaster Ewart Taylor said.

The landscaping, flowers, appearance of the grounds as well as the interior of the post office was inspected.

Custodians employed here are: Joe Sherrod, Hugh Aldrich and Tom Ledbetter.

Governor Will Attend Rally

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will attend a 9 a.m. Saturday meeting of the Bootheel Democratic Club at the El Capri Restaurant, Frank Ferrell, club treasurer, said today.

Purpose of the meeting is to plan for a fall Democratic rally in the 10th district. All chairmen of the Democratic county committees in the 21 counties of the 10th district have been invited to the breakfast meeting.

State Senator J. F. (Pat) Patterson, Caruthersville, president of the club, and members of the 10th district Democratic committee will attend. Committee members are Flake McHaney, Kennett; Harry Warren Jr., Charleston, Hal E. Hunter Jr., New Madrid; Mrs. Cornelia Shuford, Chaffee; Mrs. Wilma Ringer, Dexter, and Mrs. Margaret Martin, Jackson.

Counties within the 10th district are Ste. Genevive, St. Francois, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Perry, Iron, Madison, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Butler, Wayne, Shannon, Ripley, Howell, Carter, Reynolds, and Oregon.

Insurance Bids Will Be Opened

Bids for the life and hospitalization insurance coverage of about 100 city employes will be opened at 4:30 p.m. March 25 at the city administration building by the city insurance committee.

Maurice Hixon, committee chairman, said the present hospitalization coverage is inadequate. More coverage is being sought to keep pace with increasing hospitalization and medical costs, he said.

No increase is sought in the life insurance coverage. It is a $2,000 policy per city employe.

The city pays half of the insurance costs for subscribing employes.

Fowler Says Big Tax Hike Urgently Needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler declared today it is necessary that Congress pass a big income tax increase within 30 days.

While he was testifying before the Senate Finance Committee, gold sales in Europe skyrocketed, and market observers said only firm action by the United States could restore public confidence.

Fowler told the committee he would welcome a tax hike more than twice as big as the 10 per cent surcharge proposed by President Johnson.

This development came as Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., suggested that it would be a good idea to go back to the income tax rates prevailing before they were reduced in 1964.

Fowler said this would bring in about $22 billion a year compared with the $10 billion in the President's proposal and added: "I would welcome this."

The secretary said that five factors made it urgent to get the income tax increase on the books at once:

1. "The highly volatile situation in the international monetary markets now is threatening the very preservation of the international monetary system as we know it."

2. "Clear indication that the Federal Reserve is on the move in the direction of increased mometary restraint because of the failure to pass a tax bill."

3. "It is now clear we may be faced with increased federal expenditures beyond the figures in the President's budget submitted in January because of events in the intervening period in Vietnam."

4. "The increased pace of the economy generally calls for more restraint."

5. "Our trade surplus is being reduced to an extent that may offset the efforts we are making to reduce our balance of payments deficit contained in the President's New Year's Day message."

Total U.S. Combat Deaths In Viet Top 20,000

SAIGON (AP) — American combat deaths through seven years of war in Vietnam evidently have passed the 20,000 mark. The U.S. Command reported today the toll as of last Saturday was 19,760. Scores have fallen in action since.

The U.S. death toll topped 500 last week for the third time in four weeks.

Later in the day a U.S. headquarters spokesman reduced the estimate to 207,000 to 220,000 but the reduction of 16,000 to 28,000 was a lot less than the 55,000 enemy dead which the U.S. Command has claimed since Jan. 1.

The command said 509 Americans were killed in combat and 2,766 were wounded last week, compared with 542 killed and 2,191 wounded the previous week.

In the week of Feb. 11-17, the number of Americans killed was the highest of the war— 543.

There were 470 killed in the week of Feb. 18-24.

South Vietnamese military headquarters reported 418 government troops killed last week, 1,199 wounded and 98 missing or captured. This was a sharp rise over the week before, when 139 were reported killed, 779 wounded and 92 missing.

The U.S. Command reported that allied forces killed 4,335 of the enemy last week, while the South Vietnamese said 5,327 were killed and 488 captured. Discrepancies in the report of enemy casualties by the two commands is not unusual.

Breakin At Junior High

A break-in was reported at 8:40 a.m. today at the Sikeston junior high school. The teacher workshop was entered and machines were reported to have been broken into, but an estimate of what was taken was not available, police said.

In other activity, Cletus Ray Counts, Charleston, was arrested at 8:14 p.m. Wednesday on South Main St. and charged with driving while intoxicated. Edward L. Golightly, Charleston, was arrested with Counts and charged with public intoxication.

Two accidents were worked by police Wednesday: A car driven by Samuel Vinson, 73, 305 Branum St., struck the rear of a car stopped on Murray Lane at South Kingshighway at 4:10 p. m., police reported. The stopped car was driven by David Moyers, 17, 610 Dempster St. No injuries resulted and no charges were filed.

A car driven by Ira D. Clayton, 60, 210 Williams, sideswiped an automobile driven by Suzane Aarant, 17, route two, Sikeston on East Malone near East street, police reported. Both cars were traveling east on Malone when the mishap occurred. The Aarant vehicle was in the right hand traffic lane. No one was injured and no summons was issued.

Action and not just words. . . that's a philosophy the Daily Standard has long endorsed. And it's the philosophy that has guided the Girl Scouts throughout their 56 years.

Today the Girl Scouts are underlining this philosophy with action that is important to every American. They are intensifying their efforts to find members and leaders: not just in middle class suburbia, but in hard core poverty areas. Their hope is to build bridges of friendship, through Girl Scouting, between the inner and outer cities of our nation.

It's possible that the communication gap which separates these two areas of our society may be bridged better by young people than by adults. The reason is that today's youth is trying to recognize essential values, and to reject the superficial differences that separate people.

We think the Girl Scout effort deserves commendation. In this 56th year of their existence, they are proving a greater force for good than ever, and we hope their example is followed by all Americans.

DODGE THAT COBBLE ROCK, MAHONEY

Here it is St. Patrick's day, and we'll try to deal with the matter without brogue or "Mother Machree."

We shall start out by demanding: Is nothing sacred?

Last year Yale University seized Columbus day to publish a tract saying that Columbus didn't discover America at all, but that it was Leif Eriksen and the Norsemen.

St. Patrick's day usually escapes similar challenge, as the Irish are said to be somewhat temperamental, and no one wants an ash stick laid across his skull.

But now comes a busybody who is a disgrace to the name of Mahoney, and he says the famous saint is "a big legend," because there were really two St. Patricks.

"Of course," says this oracle, a certain Dr. John Mahoney of the University of Detroit, who is an Irish scholar, "I'd be cautious about saying this is a Dublin pub." (Or a Chicago pub, either, Mahoney.)

Dr. Mahoney says St. Patrick would have needed a life span of 125 years to accomplish all that is credited to him. He contends that the earlier St. Patrick (Palladius Uatricius, or Patrick) probably did part of the work attributed to the saint who is now celebrated. He thinks that when the first Patrick died in 461, a successor of the same name took up the work and carried it on until his own death in 493.

Well, we don't know about that. We know the tale St. Patrick is supposed to have explained the mysteries of the Trinity to the Irish by plucking a shamrock and showing how its three leaves were one.

We have heard that St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland, though some people say there never were any snakes in Ireland, except those propagated out of a jar of poteen. Be that as it may, it is related that one old serpent resisted St. Patrick's blandishments and refused to slither into the sea, but that the saint outwitted him by building a box and inviting him in. When the snake argued the box was too small, St. Patrick challenged him, "Try it." Once the serpent entered the box to prove he was right, St. Pat clapped on the lid and tossed the works into the sea.

We can just imagine it now -- a bunch of loyal Irishmen building a box big enough to accommodate Mahoney.

SENATE FUND LEADERSHIP

Bootheel residents can take pride in the fact that one of their own citizens probably knows more about Missouri's finances than any single citizen of the state.

That man is State Senator J. W. (Pat) Patterson of Caruthersville, who serves as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, a post he has held since 1961.

Sen. Patterson served under former State Senator John W. Noble, when the Kennett man held this important job. Several years before Sen. Noble, Paul Jones was chairman of the Senate unit.

Sen. Patterson has fought a good many fiscal wars in his time, and during his tenure as chairman has seen to it that essential state services received proportionate increases from the expanding state revenue fund.

The Bootheel lawmaker has encountered some of his most difficult moments during the past several weeks when he and other members of the Senate appropriations conference "team" locked horns with members from the House on legislative disputes for certain agency appropriations, including tourism and the Department of Agriculture.

But Sen. Patterson displays a quality that should be followed by more lawmakers: he follows the rules of the General Assembly and respects agreements that are both public and private. For example, when the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to cut the Division of Mental Diseases' request for an alcoholism program, Sen. Patterson abided by the decision even though he did not agree with the cut.

When the Senate, led by Sen. Earl Blackwell, later voted to go against the committee's wishes and eliminated the same division's request for an emotional disturbed children's center, Sen. Patterson fought this action because of his committee's earlier approval of the funds.

Sometimes this determination to abide by the rules gets Sen. Patterson into trouble; he is sometimes castigated, and unfairly so, and he appears in a bad light.

This newspaper has not always agreed with all of Sen. Patterson's views. Needless to say, he has not always agreed with all of ours.

But we would be remiss if we did not note that the Senator from Pemiscot abides by the rules and still manages to finance important state projects.

It's a rare quality, and we're glad Sen. Patterson has it.

Social Security is a "necessary program; it's here to stay, and all of us, particularly those of us in business who pay half the tax load and collect the other half must see that it is kept strong, and centered on purposes which it can best serve," stated Mr. Allan Shivers, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He added: "We must be ever on guard to keep the program from veering off into a relief program, or into other unrelated channels. . . We must protect Social Security from these invasions."

STICKING OUT OUR NECK

Two years ago the Appeal predicted that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York would be the Republican presidential candidate in 1968. With the withdrawal of Gov. George Romney of Michigan from the race, it begins to look more and more as if that prediction will come true. Again sticking out our editorial neck, we'll guess he will be the nominee.

We also believe that he will be the most difficult Republican candidate for the Democrats to beat. If he runs he will pick up many votes from unhappy Democrats and Independents, something which Richard Nixon probably couldn't do.

And incidentally, with Romney out of the race and Rockefeller refusing to enter any of the state primaries, Nixon is put in the position of running in those state primaries when he has no opponent with state primary victories assured, but hollow ones at best. In those primaries, Nixon looks a lot like that fictitious medieval knight, Don Quixote, who jousted at imaginary enemies, only to find there was no one there.

NEW YORK (AP) — Would you like never to have to work for a living and also have a trained ape to help your wife around the house?

These awesome delights are envisioned— and not altogether tongue-in-cheek— as possible benefits to man in the next century by Arthur C. Clarke, one of the world's top science fiction writers.

"It isn't possible to predict the political future, but it is possible to map technological trends," said Clarke, a trained physicist and mathematician who is also recognized as an authority on space and oceanography.

"The life of the average man will be profoundly changed.

"In the next century 95 per cent of the work done by men now will no longer exist, or will be handled by machines. Man's purpose in the universe will be to enjoy himself— and it is about time he did.

"Pericles never had to go to a daily job. Neither did Socrates. No freeman of ancient Athens had to labor to live. They had thousands of slaves. Future man will have millions of superior machines to do the world's work."

What about those trained apes to help the little lady do the dishes and clean the rugs?

Smiling slightly, Clarke replied:

"A chimpanzee already has the ability to do many household chores, but he lacks the motivation— the desire to do them. In the future we can genetically engineer apes to do even more complicated tasks— and enjoy doing them."

The English writer— 50, thin-haired, slender, slightly stooped — has written some 40 books that have sold five million copies. He spent four years working on MGM's science thrill film, "2001; A Space Odyssey."

Clarke believes we are in the beginning stages of a revolutionary intelligence and information explosion of which most of us are still unaware.

"Knowledge now is doubling every 10 years," he remarked. "By the time a man is middle-aged, half the things he learned are no longer true.

"In the coming century the ordinary day-to-day running of the world will be turned over to a race of supercomputers. The great problem will be educating people.

"Education will be lifelong. If a man lives to be 125, he may attend some form of school until he is 120. People will spend their time living and learning, not working at routine jobs.

"The great industries of the future will be education, research and entertainment.

"Before the development of agriculture man didn't really work. He lived as a hunter. In the time ahead agriculture, as we know it today, will be ended. It is too inefficient. Synthetic foods will be produced more cheaply and in larger quantities. Even now only three per cent of the world's petroleum output could be used chemically to produce all mankind's protein needs."

Other changes Clarke foresees:

"Man may be able to enjoy life 24 hours a day instead of 16 by abolishing sleep. Some forms of life do without sleep.

"Sex, obviously, will have to be separated from reproduction, a process already well under way. No family will be allowed to have more than 2.1 children."

I WANT MY BOY TO HAVE ALL THE ADVANTAGES I CAN GIVE HIM

SUCH as having to earn his own allowance by running errands, cutting lawns.

Such as getting good grades in school-getting them because he wants to, because he knows what it would do to me if he didn't.

Such as being proud to be clean and neat and decent.

Such as standing up and standing proud when his country's flag goes by.

Such as addressing elder friends of his parents as "sir" and "ma'am."

Such as having to earn his own way in the world and knowing he has to prepare for it by hard work, hard study, and sacrificing some of the pleasures and ease his friends may get from too-indulgent parents.

These are the advantages I want my son to have, because these are the things which will make him self-respecting and self-reliant and successful. And that is the happiness I want him to have.

WARNS INFLATION AIDED BY PUBLIC WORKERS' WAGE HIKES

A warning on the inflationary effect of wage settlements reached in bargaining with striking public employes was sounded by Frederick R. Kappel, Chairman, Executive Committee, American Telephone and Telegraph Company in an address at the 30th annual dinner of Tax Foundation, Inc.

Noting that rising wages granted in one industry generate a "wage push" in other sectors of the economy "where opportunities for increased productivity scale down to zero." Mr. Kapel added:

"When you come to the most vital of all urban services. . . . nursing and education, and police and fire protection, there is no way to bring about increases in productivity that will pay, or help pay, the costs of higher and higher and higher wages."

Thus, said the speaker, who was the recipient of the Foundation's annual Award for Distinguished Public Service, "up go the taxes. But there is more to come."

Today, he added, unions are thrusting into the public sector "with all the possibilities that this may hold." To the degree that bargaining in the public sector can be effective in producing higher wages, said Mr. Kappel, "we have a new element in the picture -- and the union push here, as in the private sector, is not distinguished by any sense of restraint."

Mr. Kappel said he believed that even without public strikes, tere is "little doubt that the heat will be on in the years to come." And, he said, it will be in areas where increases in productivity to help the cost can NOT be anticipated.

The union member himself who works in productive industry, Mr. Kappel pointed out, is also on the receiving end of the problem --like everybody else, since he too, must pay the taxes that "must endlessly be raised to pay for urban service that cannot be economized."

Mr. Kappel said he wondered if such a union workman understood that every raise he gets may some day -- not too far away "come back to bite him?" And, he added, if this workman doesn't understand this "does he strike?"

"If he strikes," said Mr. Kappel, "shall we in industry go his way without insisting that the facts be faced? Or shall we understand the problem. . . and act, with real resolution? If we don't, then I say we are surely headed for deep trouble."

Nobody, he said, wants to see teachers and firemen and police underpaid, "but how. . . are we to prevent the urban problem from becoming more and more acute if we fail in mere courage to hold inflation down?"

While, admittedly, he went on, inflation is not the root cause or sole cause of the urban crisis, it is ONE of the important reasons. "For it makes everything that needs to be done. . . that much harder to do."

In concluding, Mr. Kappel said that "at this time of critical decisions in our country's life, the significance of Tax Foundation's role is, if anything, enhanced. . . I strongly hope this organization will continue to maintain a constructive leadership role in helping to shape sound policies."

ADMIRAL BURK'S VIEWS REGARDING VIETNAM

One of America's most distinguished military men, Admiral Arleigh Burke, former Chief of Naval Operations, was recently interviewed on how to end communist aggression in South Vietnam. Admiral Burke's long experience makes his views well worth hearing:

He stated: "The object of war is to convince the enemy that no matter what he does he cannot achieve his purposes . . . the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have to be convinced that, no matter what they do, they cannot take over South Vietnam."

To achieve this, Admiral Burke believes "we should knock out the docks at Haiphong . . . we should give them something to think about and make it necessary for them to react to our initiative."

Admiral Burk also believes, "we should exercise the right of hot pursuit which we have discussed with Cambodia for the last six months . . . so far Cambodia has proclaimed neutrality but has permitted the communists to conduct war operations against the United States from bases in Cambodia."

For those who fear that stronger U. S. efforts to win the war might bring Red China into the conflict, Admiral Burke says: "I would be meticulous about not doing anything to attack the Red Chinese directly . . . I don't think that there is a great possiblity of the Red Chinese coming in."

To sufficiently defend freedom in Southeast Asia, those conducting the U.S. part of the war could follow the advice of a highly competent military man. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Senate should scrutinize military takeover of foreign policy; Vietnam has become an undeclared major war; LFJ goes all out in kowtowing to brass.

WASHINGTON -- Before the senate votes money for 200,000 more U. S. troops to Vietnam, it should take a careful look at two things:

1. -- The slip - and - slide manner in which we have become involved in a major war without the consent of congress.

2. -- The manner in which the American military more and more are shaping, now almost directing, foreign policy.

The trend toward military dictation of foreign policy has been developing for some time, but has reached a peak under Lyndon Johnson. Today there are only three civilian advisers whom he consults -- Secretary of State Rusk, who has become so entrenched regarding Vietnam that he has lost his perspective; Walt Rostow, who has responsible for our original involvement in Vietnam under Kennedy and now wants to justify his mistake; and the new Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford, who has kept his perspective.

These three lunch with the President once a week. Secretary of Defense McNamara, now retired, is reported to have had a feeling of remorse that he was partly responsible for leading the country deeper and deeper into war. Clifford, who has taken his place, is a tough, shrewd observer and not as much of a hawk as originally reported. It now develops that he was against the bombing of North Vietnam on the fatal night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the Johnson administration took its biggest escalation step. He felt the decision was a serious error.

It was the military who persuaded the President to take this step. Acting Secretary of State George Ball vigorously opposed the escalation. Ball argued that Premier Kosygin, who had been in office only four months, had arrived in Hanoi only the day before, and to bomb at the time looked like a deliberate slap at him. Later it developed that Kosygin had been on a mission to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace.

The joint chiefs of staff have been the guiding factor in setting American policy in Vietnam ever since. Simultaneously the war has been going from bad to worse.

MILITARY ENCROACHMENT

The encorachment of the American military on foreign policy under Johnson is not entirely new. To some extent it began under Franklin Roosevelt, who gave the navy a much bigger role than the army. Roosevelt had served as assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson, and resented the manner in which the Republicans under Coolidge and Hoover had scrapped battleships and curtailed cruisers. FDR rebuilt the navy at a tremendous speed, but never let the admirals or the generals run World War II.

Harry Truman, a veteran of Battery D in the old Missouri National Guard, reversed this, gave more power to the army. His close friend and military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, was a staunch army man, and on occasion helped siphon arms to Latin American nations despite the opposition of the state department. Truman, however, never let the army get out of hand, and fired Gen. Douglas McArthur when he stepped over the line.

Significantly it was a military President, Gen. Dwight D. Eisen- however, who curbed the army more than any other recent President. The generals used to complain that Ike cut the military budget more than any civilian president. Ike understood army politics, and was tough with his ols buddies when they tried to lobby on Capitol Hill. He also warned, as he left office, of the danger of an alliance between the defense contractors and the military.

Kennedy returned the military to a position of power, emphasizing a 50 - year fact that the military have always prospered under Democratic presidents.

LBJ's RECORD

However, no Democrat has given the military so much scope as Lyndon Johnson. Lyndon's kowtowing to the brass began when he was a young lieutenant commander in the South Pacific in World War II. Later he served on the House Naval Affairs Committee, then as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee.

As such, he teamed up with the generals and admirals to blast Eisenhower for the missile gap. As senate majority leader he was in a potent position to give the military the appropriations they wanted, and he did.

The generals and admirals, in return, put more military bases in Texas than in any other state in the union. If the civilians, who were supposed to run the military under Ike, tried to economize on a base in Texas, they heard from Lyndon in no uncertain terms. And the military always rushed to his defense. Texas bases, no matter how outmoded, were not curtailed or transferred out of the state.

This alliance between LBJ and the brass hats has continued as the onetime senator from Texas has moved into the White House.

The President's latest romance has been with Gen. William Westmoreland, who was caught napping during the TET Lunar holiday in a manner almost as serious as Admiral H. E. Kimmel and Gen. Walter Short were caught napping at Pearl Harbor. They were removed from command and disciplined.

Gen. Westmoreland, instead of being removed, has asked for and will probably get 200,000 more troops. Significantly, the oldest friend the President has on Capitol Hill has been publicly critical of Westmoreland. When LBJ, a very young Senator from Texas, aspired to be senate majority leader in 1953, it was Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, Southern elder statesman, who got on the long distance telephone to absent senators, then not in session, and rounded up the votes.

Today, Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has joined the public critics of Gen. Westmoreland. But his old friend, now in the White House, seems mesmerized as far as military mistakes are concerned.

REVERSE CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

Refusal to Handle War Resister's Leader's Craft Is Warning of Longshoremen's Power

New York: -- At issue is: who can shut down what with nonviolent resistance?

For the moment this issue is all wrapped up in a lovely 35-foot two-masted fiberglass ketch which has been lying on Pier 36 over at the East River.

Last Thursday, the graceful two-master was hauled to the dock for loading aboard the Atlantic Clipper, bound for the Virgin Islands. Then the eternally embattled dockwallopers, members of the AFL-CIO's International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) Local 856, saw the consignee's name -- pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock, war resister, enemy of the draft, counselor of card burners. The pier workers refused to load her.

They recalled that Dr. Spock had been in the midst of a multi-opinion, anti-Vietnam war demonstration here during which some marchers, as they rounded the Battery point, carried the Viet Cong flag.

It was an early wintry morning last December. Longshoremen, one of whom had lost a son in a bloodstained Vietnamese rice paddy, hurdled the police lines' "wooden horses," and the famed, heavily televised assault began as the men tried to tear down the Viet Cong flag. There was considerable beating and punching. Dr. Spock was not touched though many around him were bloodied until the police broke it up.

Now, three months later, the dockhands recalled the incident, and remindful of the nationwide liberal attacks upon them for tearing into the marchers, peacefully "withheld their labor."

For the moment it appears that Dr. Spock, who was unavailable for comment, will have to vacation until April 1 without the craft.

"We'll do it every time," said Johnny Bowers, laconic ILA executive vice president. "We remember the Battery Park incident which occurred right outside our office. We just won't handle anything shipped by that crowd.

"Now will we touch anything of assistance to the Viet Cong or the North Vietnamese.

"We've picketed the French Line and Cunard line because France and Britain were trading with Hanoi. This could spread a over. If there had not been a Viet Cong flag in the December march, it would have been a peaceful demonstration as far as we're concerned. We wouldn't have broken in. They're entitled to it, I suppose. But so are we. We don't have to handle their stuff."

This then is the issue: boycotts and civil disobedience and non-violent resistance can cut many ways. The ILA can cripple shipments going inland as well as overseas. They are far more than stubborn men -- they are powerful men sitting at the inner mechanism of this massive society.

It was Teddy Gleason, ILA president, who, crazy like a pack of foxes, seemingly irresponsibly started a boycott of cooper imports and then called it off and on with well-premeditated indecision. But it was little "Teddy" who forced the strike from the obit pages into the White House Executive offices by deciding who would or would not get scarce cooper.

It is the ILA which now permits the shipment of American wheat to Eastern Europe as long as 50 per cent of it goes in American freighters, though the Communist purchasers must pay far more for this transportation than they would if it were shipped in foreign flag craft.

There were horrendous outcries from the White House and the Cabinet back in 1965 when "Teddy" and his colleagues said--if U. S. ships don't carry half, we won't load the grain. And they didn't. Even Walter Reuther protested bitterly that the boycott hampered President Johnson's direction of foreign policy.

There are many who say this is far too much power for any union to wield. But it does. It could, for example, paralyze shipments of vast tonnage of vital foods and other material to Eastern Europe.

"With respect to other Eastern European nations," Gleason said recently, "many of the same considerations (which provoked the ILA boycott of Soviet general cargoes -- VR) apply, but by no means all. Some of these countries have a history of democratic governments. Their attachment to communism is relatively recent, largely involuntary and often quite shaky.

"They possess neither the inclination nor the power to wage aggresssive worldwide struggles against the U. S. or other democratic nations. The hope of weaning them from Soviet contro, while perhaps overestimated by some, cannot be ignored.

"For these reasons, the ILA has not adpoted a general policy against working all cargoes from or to Soviet bloc countries. We have been responsive to special appeals from our government, particularly when the cargoes are not adaptable to hostile use."

There it is plainly said. The ILA could slash all commerce with the Soviets and the Eastern bloc. It could paralyze ports all the way down from Canada and around to the Gulf. It could cut off transshipments from Puerto Rico. It could slash imports repackaged and transshipped from Western European ports.

Should the signal be given, the ILA's 116,000 dock workers could remake American foreign policy, just as it changed the course of the cooper strike.

And the AFL-CIO union could cost the Soviets and those of the Eastern European bloc, who are supplying North Vietnam, hundreds of millions of dollars--not to mention depriving them of vital foods.

That's sheer power. The case of the ketch-less Dr. Spock is far more than a display of temperament. Bowers and Gleason tell me it is a warning.

Civil disobedience cuts two ways. And whether or not one is philosophically uneasy in the face of such power -- nonetheless it is there.

Action and not just words. . . that's a philosophy the Daily Standard has long endorsed. And it's the philosophy that has guided the Girl Scouts throughout their 56 years.

Today the Girl Scouts are underlining this philosophy with action that is important to every American. They are intensifying their efforts to find members and leaders: not just in middle class suburbia, but in hard core poverty areas. Their hope is to build bridges of friendship, through Girl Scouting, between the inner and outer cities of our nation.

It's possible that the communication gap which separates these two areas of our society may be bridged better by young people than by adults. The reason is that today's youth is trying to recognize essential values, and to reject the superficial differences that separate people.

We think the Girl Scout effort deserves commendation. In this 56th year of their existence, they are proving a greater force for good than ever, and we hope their example is followed by all Americans.

DODGE THAT COBBLE ROCK, MAHONEY

Here it is St. Patrick's day, and we'll try to deal with the matter without brogue or "Mother Machree."

We shall start out by demanding: Is nothing sacred?

Last year Yale University seized Columbus day to publish a tract saying that Columbus didn't discover America at all, but that it was Leif Eriksen and the Norsemen.

St. Patrick's day usually escapes similar challenge, as the Irish are said to be somewhat temperamental, and no one wants an ash stick laid across his skull.

But now comes a busybody who is a disgrace to the name of Mahoney, and he says the famous saint is "a big legend," because there were really two St. Patricks.

"Of course," says this oracle, a certain Dr. John Mahoney of the University of Detroit, who is an Irish scholar, "I'd be cautious about saying this is a Dublin pub." (Or a Chicago pub, either, Mahoney.)

Dr. Mahoney says St. Patrick would have needed a life span of 125 years to accomplish all that is credited to him. He contends that the earlier St. Patrick (Palladius Uatricius, or Patrick) probably did part of the work attributed to the saint who is now celebrated. He thinks that when the first Patrick died in 461, a successor of the same name took up the work and carried it on until his own death in 493.

Well, we don't know about that. We know the tale St. Patrick is supposed to have explained the mysteries of the Trinity to the Irish by plucking a shamrock and showing how its three leaves were one.

We have heard that St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland, though some people say there never were any snakes in Ireland, except those propagated out of a jar of poteen. Be that as it may, it is related that one old serpent resisted St. Patrick's blandishments and refused to slither into the sea, but that the saint outwitted him by building a box and inviting him in. When the snake argued the box was too small, St. Patrick challenged him, "Try it." Once the serpent entered the box to prove he was right, St. Pat clapped on the lid and tossed the works into the sea.

We can just imagine it now -- a bunch of loyal Irishmen building a box big enough to accommodate Mahoney.

SENATE FUND LEADERSHIP

Bootheel residents can take pride in the fact that one of their own citizens probably knows more about Missouri's finances than any single citizen of the state.

That man is State Senator J. W. (Pat) Patterson of Caruthersville, who serves as chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, a post he has held since 1961.

Sen. Patterson served under former State Senator John W. Noble, when the Kennett man held this important job. Several years before Sen. Noble, Paul Jones was chairman of the Senate unit.

Sen. Patterson has fought a good many fiscal wars in his time, and during his tenure as chairman has seen to it that essential state services received proportionate increases from the expanding state revenue fund.

The Bootheel lawmaker has encountered some of his most difficult moments during the past several weeks when he and other members of the Senate appropriations conference "team" locked horns with members from the House on legislative disputes for certain agency appropriations, including tourism and the Department of Agriculture.

But Sen. Patterson displays a quality that should be followed by more lawmakers: he follows the rules of the General Assembly and respects agreements that are both public and private. For example, when the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to cut the Division of Mental Diseases' request for an alcoholism program, Sen. Patterson abided by the decision even though he did not agree with the cut.

When the Senate, led by Sen. Earl Blackwell, later voted to go against the committee's wishes and eliminated the same division's request for an emotional disturbed children's center, Sen. Patterson fought this action because of his committee's earlier approval of the funds.

Sometimes this determination to abide by the rules gets Sen. Patterson into trouble; he is sometimes castigated, and unfairly so, and he appears in a bad light.

This newspaper has not always agreed with all of Sen. Patterson's views. Needless to say, he has not always agreed with all of ours.

But we would be remiss if we did not note that the Senator from Pemiscot abides by the rules and still manages to finance important state projects.

It's a rare quality, and we're glad Sen. Patterson has it.

STICKING OUT OUR NECK

Two years ago the Appeal predicted that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York would be the Republican presidential candidate in 1968. With the withdrawal of Gov. George Romney of Michigan from the race, it begins to look more and more as if that prediction will come true. Again sticking out our editorial neck, we'll guess he will be the nominee.

We also believe that he will be the most difficult Republican candidate for the Democrats to beat. If he runs he will pick up many votes from unhappy Democrats and Independents, something which Richard Nixon probably couldn't do.

And incidentally, with Romney out of the race and Rockefeller refusing to enter any of the state primaries, Nixon is put in the position of running in those state primaries when he has no opponent with state primary victories assured, but hollow ones at best. In those primaries, Nixon looks a lot like that fictitious medieval knight, Don Quixote, who jousted at imaginary enemies, only to find there was no one there.

Such as standing up and standing proud when his country's flag goes by.

Such as addressing elder friends of his parents as "sir" and "ma'am."

Such as having to earn his own way in the world and knowing he has to prepare for it by hard work, hard study, and sacrificing some of the pleasures and ease his friends may get from too-indulgent parents.

These are the advantages I want my son to have, because these are the things which will make him self-respecting and self-reliant and successful. And that is the happiness I want him to have.

WARNS INFLATION AIDED BY PUBLIC WORKERS' WAGE HIKES

A warning on the inflationary effect of wage settlements reached in bargaining with striking public employes was sounded by Frederick R. Kappel, Chairman, Executive Committee, American Telephone and Telegraph Company in an address at the 30th annual dinner of Tax Foundation, Inc.

Noting that rising wages granted in one industry generate a "wage push" in other sectors of the economy "where opportunities for increased productivity scale down to zero." Mr. Kapel added: "When you come to the most vital of all urban services. . . . nursing and education, and police and fire protection, there is no way to bring about increases in productivity that will pay, or help pay, the costs of higher and higher and higher wages."

Thus, said the speaker, who was the recipient of the Foundation's annual Award for Distinguished Public Service, "up go the taxes. But there is more to come."

Today, he added, unions are thrusting into the public sector "with all the possibilities that this may hold." To the degree that bargaining in the public sector can be effective in producing higher wages, said Mr. Kappel, "we have a new element in the picture -- and the union push here, as in the private sector, is not distinguished by any sense of restraint."

Mr. Kappel said he believed that even without public strikes, there is "little doubt that the heat will be on in the years to come." And, he said, it will be in areas where increases in productivity to help the cost can NOT be anticipated.

The union member himself who works in productive industry. Mr. Kappel pointed out, is also on the receiving end of the problem --like everybody else, since he, too, must pay the taxes that "must endlessly be raised to pay for urban service that cannot be economized."

Mr. Kappel said he wondered if such a union workman understood that every raise he gets may some day -- not too far away "come back to bite him?" And, he added, if this workman doesn't understand this "does he strike?"

"If he strikes," said Mr. Kappel, "shall we in industry go his way without insisting that the facts be faced? Or shall we understand the problem. . . and act, with real resolution? If we don't, then I say we are surely headed for deep trouble."

Nobody, he said, wants to see teachers and firemen and police underpaid, "but how. . . are we to prevent the urban problem from becoming more and more acute if we fail in mere courage to hold inflation down?"

While, admittedly, he went on, inflation is not the root cause or sole cause of the urban crisis, it is ONE of the important reasons. "For it makes everything that needs to be done. . . that much harder to do."

In concluding, Mr. Kappel said that "at this time of critical decisions in our country's life, the significance of Tax Foundation's role is, if anything, enhanced. . . I strongly hope this organization will continue to maintain a constructive leadership role in helping to shape sound policies."

ADMIRAL BURK'S VIEWS REGARDING VIETNAM

One of America's most distinguished military men, Admiral Arleigh Burke, former Chief of Naval Operations, was recently interviewed on how to end communist aggression in South Vietnam. Admiral Burke's long experience makes his views well worth hearing:

He stated: "The object of war is to convince the enemy that no matter what he does he cannot achieve his purposes . . . the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have to be convinced that, no matter what they do, they cannot take over South Vietnam."

To achieve this, Admiral Burke believes "we should knock out the docks at Haiphong . . . we should give them something to think about and make it necessary for them to react to our initiative."

Admiral Burk also believes, "we should exercise the right of hot pursuit which we have discussed with Cambodia for the last six months . . . so far Cambodia has proclaimed neutrality but has permitted the communists to conduct war operations against the United States from bases in Cambodia."

For those who fear that stronger U. S. efforts to win the war might bring Red China into the conflict, Admiral Burke says: "I would be meticulous about not doing anything to attack the Red Chinese directly . . . I don't think that there is a great possibility of the Red Chinese coming in."

To sufficiently defend freedom in Southeast Asia, those conducting the U.S. part of the war could follow the advice of a highly competent military man. HLH

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON SAYS: Senate should scrutinize military takeover of foreign policy; Vietnam has become an undeclared major war; LBJ goes all out in kowtowing to brass.

WASHINGTON -- Before the senate votes money for 200,000 more U. S. troops to Vietnam, it should take a careful look at two things:

1. -- The slip - and - slide manner in which we have become involved in a major war without the consent of congress.

2. -- The manner in which the American military more and more are shaping, now almost directing, foreign policy.

The trend toward military dictation of foreign policy has been developing for some time, but has reached a peak under Lyndon Johnson. Today there are only three civilian advisers whom he consults -- Secretary of State Rusk, who has become so entrenched regarding Vietnam that he has lost his perspective; Walt Rostow, who has responsible for our original involvement in Vietnam under Kennedy and now wants to justify his mistake; and the new Secretary of Defense, Clark Clifford, who has kept his perspective.

These three lunch with the President once a week. Secretary of Defense McNamara, now retired, is reported to have had a feeling of remorse that he was partly responsible for leading the country deeper and deeper into war. Clifford, who has taken his place, is a tough, shrewd observer and not as much of a hawk as originally reported. It now develops that he was against the bombing of North Vietnam on the fatal night of Feb. 7, 1965, when the Johnson administration took its biggest escalation step. He felt the decision was a serious error.

It was the military who persuaded the President to take this step. Acting Secretary of State George Ball vigorously opposed the escalation. Ball argued that Premier Kosygin, who had been in office only four months, had arrived in Hanoi only the day before, and to bomb at the time looked like a deliberate slap at him. Later it developed that Kosygin had been on a mission to persuade the North Vietnamese to talk peace.

The joint chiefs of staff have been the guiding factor in setting American policy in Vietnam ever since. Simultaneously the war has been going from bad to worse.

MILITARY ENCROACHMENT

The encorachment of the American military on foreign policy under Johnson is not entirely new. To some extent it began under Franklin Roosevelt, who gave the navy a much bigger role than the army. Roosevelt had served as assistant secretary of the navy under Wilson, and resented the manner in which the Republicans under Coolidge and Hoover had scrapped battleships and curtailed cruisers. FDR rebuilt the navy at a tremendous speed, but never let the admirals or the generals run World War II.

Harry Truman, a veteran of Battery D in the old Missouri National Guard, reversed this, gave more power to the army. His close friend and military aide, Gen. Harry Vaughan, was a staunch army man, and on occasion helped siphon arms to Latin American nations despite the opposition of the state department. Truman, however, never let the army get out of hand, and fired Gen. Douglas McArthur when he stepped over the line.

Significantly it was a military President, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who curbed the army more than any other recent President. The generals used to complain that Ike cut the military budget more than any civilian president. Ike understood army politics, and was tough with his ols buddies when they tried to lobby on Capitol Hill. He also warned, as he left office, of the danger of an alliance between the defense contractors and the military.

Kennedy returned the military to a position of power, emphasizing a 50 - year fact that the military have always prospered under Democratic presidents.

LBJ's RECORD

However, no Democrat has given the military so much scope as Lyndon Johnson. Lyndon's kowtowing to the brass began when he was a young lieutenant commander in the South Pacific in World War II. Later he served on the House Naval Affairs Committee, then as chairman of the Senate Preparedness Committee.

As such, he teamed up with the generals and admirals to blast Eisenhower for the missile gap. As senate majority leader he was in a potent position to give the military the appropriations they wanted, and he did.

The generals and admirals, in return, put more military bases in Texas than in any other state in the union. If the civilians, who were supposed to run the military under Ike, tried to economize on a base in Texas, they heard from Lyndon in no uncertain terms. And the military always rushed to his defense. Texas bases, no matter how outmoded, were not curtailed or transferred out of the state.

This alliance between LBJ and the brass hats has continued as the onetime senator from Texas has moved into the White House.

The President's latest romance has been with Gen. William Westmoreland, who was caught napping during the TET Lunar holiday in a manner almost as serious as Admiral H. E. Kimmel and Gen. Walter Short were caught napping at Pearl Harbor. They were removed from command and disciplined.

Gen. Westmoreland, instead of being removed, has asked for and will probably get 200,000 more troops. Significantly, the oldest friend the President has on Capitol Hill has been publicly critical of Westmoreland. When LBJ, a very young Senator from Texas, aspired to be senate majority leader in 1953, it was Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia, Southern elder statesman, who got on the long distance telephone to absent senators, then not in session, and rounded up the votes.

Today, Russell, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has joined the public critics of Gen. Westmoreland. But his old friend, now in the White House, seems mesmerized as far as military mistakes are concerned.

Inside Labor

REVERSE CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

Refusal to Handle War Resister's Leader's Craft Is Warning of Longshoremen's Power

New York: -- At issue is: who can shut down what with non-violent resistance?

For the moment this issue is all wrapped up in a lovely 35-foot two-masted fiberglass ketch which has been lying on Pier 36 over at the East River.

Last Thursday, the graceful two-master was hauled to the dock for loading aboard the Atlantic Clipper, bound for the Virgin Islands. Then the eternally embattled dockwallopers, members of the AFL-CIO's International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) Local 856, saw the consignee's name --pediatrician Dr. Benjamin Spock, war resister, enemy of the draft, counselor of card burners. The pier workers refused to load her.

They recalled that Dr. Spock had been in the midst of a multi-opinion, anti-Vietnam war demonstration here during which some marchers, as they rounded the Battery point, carried the Viet Cong flag.

It was an early wintry morning last December. Longshoremen, one of whom had lost a son in a bloodstained Vietnamese rice paddy, hurdled the police lines' "wooden horses," and the famed, heavily televised assault began as the men tried to tear down the Viet Cong flag. There was considerable beating and punching. Dr. Spock was not touched though many around him were bloodied until the police broke it up.

Now, three months later, the dockhands recalled the incident, and remindful of the nationwide liberal attacks upon them for tearing into the marchers, peacefully "withheld their labor."

For the moment it appears that Dr. Spock, who was unavailable for comment, will have to vacation until April 1 without the craft.

"We'll do it every time," said Johnny Bowers, laconic ILA executive vice president. "We remember the Battery Park incident which occurred right outside our office. We just won't handle anything shipped by that crowd.

"Now will we touch anything of assistance to the Viet Cong or the North Vietnamese.

"We've picketed the French Line and Cunard line because France and Britain were trading with Hanoi. This could spread all over. If there had not been a Viet Cong flag in the December march, it would have been a peaceful demonstration as far as we're concerned. We wouldn't have broken in. They're entitled to it, I suppose. But so are we. We don't have to handle their stuff."

This then is the issue: boycotts and civil disobedience and non-violent resistance can cut many ways. The ILA can cripple shipments going inland as well as overseas. They are far more than stubborn men -- they are powerful men sitting at the inner mechanism of this massive society.

It was Teddy Gleason, ILA president, who, crazy like a pack of foxes, seemingly irresponsibly started a boycott of cooper imports and then called it off and on with well-premeditated indecision. But it was little "Teddy" who forced the strike from the obit pages into the White House Executive offices by deciding who would or would not get scarce cooper.

It is the ILA which now permits the shipment of American wheat to Eastern Europe as long as 50 per cent of it goes in American freighters, though the Communist purchasers must pay far more for this transportation than they would if it were shipped in foreign flag craft.

There were horrendous outcries from the White House and the Cabinet back in 1965 when "Teddy" and his colleagues said--if U. S. ships don't carry half, we won't load the grain. And they didn't. Even Walter Reuther protested bitterly that the boycott hampered President Johnson's direction of foreign policy.

There are many who say this is far too much power for any union to wield. But it does. It could, for example, paralyze shipments of vast tonnage of vital foods and other material to Eastern Europe.

"With respect to other Eastern European nations," Gleason said recently, "many of the same considerations (which provaked the ILA boycott of Soviet general cargoes -- VR) apply, but by no means all. Some of these countries have a history of democratic governments. Their attachment to communism is relatively recent, largely involuntary and often quite shaky.

"They possess neither the inclination nor the power to wage aggresssive worldwide struggles against the U. S. or other democratic nations. The hope of weaning them from Soviet contro, while perhaps overestimated by some, cannot be ignored.

"For these reasons, the ILA has not adpoted a general policy against working all cargoes from or to Soviet bloc countries. We have been respor sive to special appeals from our government, particularly when the cargoes are not adaptable to hostile use."

There it is plainly said. The ILA could slash all commerce with the Soviets and the Eastern bloc. It could paralyze ports all the way down from Canada and around to the Gulf. It could cut off transshipments from Puerto Rico. It could slash imports repackaged and transshipped from Western European ports.

Should the signal be given, the ILA's 116,000 dock workers could remake American foreign policy, just as it changed the course of the cooper strike.

And the AFL-CIO union could cost the Soviets and those of the Eastern European bloc, who are supplying North Vietnam, hundreds of millions of dollars--not to mention depriving them of vital foods.

That's sheer power. The case of the ketch-less Dr. Spock is far more than a display of temperament. Bowers and Gleason tell me it is a warning.

Civil disobedience cuts two ways. And whether or not one is philosophically uneasy in the face of such power -- nonetheless it is there.

Portageville Garden Club Plans Tour

PORTAGEVILLE - The Garden Club met last Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the community room of Farmer's Bank. Twenty - three members and four guests, Harry Moreland, Frank DeGuire, James Griffin and Delcie Simmons, attended.

Mrs. Leonard Hand, president, presided.

The annual garden club tour, May 2, and the state convention in June in Springfield were discussed.

Three new members, Mrs. Ernest G. Wilson, Mrs. Henry Covey and Mrs. Margie Puckett, were welcomed.

The attendance prize, a bud vase, was won by Mrs. Preston Shaw.

The speaker was Rear Adm. Raymond Headon of Tiptonville, Tenn. He retired from the navy in 1955, after serving 38 years. He gave his views of the world situation.

Mrs. Headon displayed a tablecloth, fan and collection of dolls she obtained in her travels in the Mid East and Far East.

Hostesses, Mrs. Mary DeLisle, Mrs. Joe DeLisle and Mrs. Hubert Milem, served cake, coffee and nuts.

The next meeting will be April 4 at 2:30 p.m. in the community room of the Farmer's Bank. Leonard Hand will present the program on Missouri Community Betterment. Hostesses for that meeting will be Mrs. J. H. Workman, Sr., Mrs. Raymond Secoy, Mrs. Arthur Drerup and Mrs. Ruth Lee.

New Madrid WSCS Meets

NEW MADRID - Mrs. Bob Blom was hostess to the Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service meeting last Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Twelve members attended.

Mrs. Harold Sloas, president, presided. Attention to the worship center, an open hand denoting five phases of prayer, was noted.

A film, "Why Methodist Women Give to Missions", depicting mission teams working in Bolivia, was shown.

Letters from Kingdom House and note of thanks from Vicki Blom were read.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Louis Evans, Mrs. D. B. Riley and Mrs. Herman Crisler, were appointed to select a slate of candidates for new officers.

Mrs. Harold Sloas was elected delegate to the spring meeting of the eastern division of the Woman's Society of Christian Service at Jefferson City, March 22 and 23. Mrs. Bill Secoy will attend as a delegate from Kewanee.

The society will buy one of two signs to be placed on the highway entering New Madrid.

Mrs. Van Sharp, program leader, reviewed the book, "That the World May Believe". She summarized the work being done in the World Council of Churches and the unity of churches. Christian unity has accomplished more in the past 25 years than in all previous years.

Mrs. Sharp closed with prayer.

The meeting was closed with the group praying the Mizpah.

Refreshments were served by the hostess during the social hour.

Mission Program For Church Circle

NEW MADRID - Presbyterian Circle two met last Thursday at 2 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Baz Horten. Seven members responded to roll call.

Mrs. Louis Jones, chairman, opened the meeting with prayer.

The topic, "The Holy Spirit and Mission of the Church," was the final lesson in a series emphasizing Christian witness at home and abroad.

Mrs. Horton was the moderator and gave the scripture.

Refreshments were served.

Others attending were Mrs. Celia Scott, Mrs. O. H. Gehrig, Mrs. Carl Parks, Mrs. Delmar Taylor and Mrs. Jesse Wilkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Jr.

Frances Catherine Brietz Marries Cecil L. Bethune Jr.

HARRISBURG, Ark. -- Miss Frances Catherine "Cathy" Brietz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brietz of Harrisburg, became the bride of Cecil Lee Bethune Jr. at 8 p.m. March 1 in the Methodist church here.

Bethune is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Sr. of Bertrand, Mo.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles W. Lewis, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Robert Burke, pastor of the Bertrand Methodist church.

White tapers in wrought iron candelabra lighted the altar which was decorated with baskets of which was decorated with baskets of white stock. Butterfly bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Earl Whitaker was organist. The volcalist, Miss Elaine Freeman, sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length wedding gown of gardenia white chiffon taffeta and Alencon lace. The bodice featured a jeweled, lace-edged portrait neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. A miniature crystal and pearl crown secured a three tiered bouffant waist-length veil. She carried a bouqet of white roses and pompons.

Miss Linda Caplinger was maid of honor. She wore a pink crepe and lace dress. Her circular headpiece secured a pink veil. She carried a bouquet of long stemmed pink roses.

Misses Robin Hubbard and Ann Smith, cousins of the bride, lighted the altar candles. They wore pink bonded crepe dresses with lace yokes. They wore wrist corsages of feathered pink carnations.

Bethune's best man was Charles Edwin Brietz, the bride's brother. Dennis Quartermous Sr. and Danny Ray Quartermouse, cousins of the groom, were ushers. The groom's attendants' flowers were pink rose bud boutonniers. The groom's white rose bud boutonniers was taken from the bride's bouquet.

The bride's mother wore a two piece pink linen dress with pink accessories. Mrs. Bethune wore a blue dacron knit dress with bone colored accessories. Both wore white cymbidium orchid corsages.

Miss Janet Whiteaker presided at the bride's book. The book was placed on a table appointed with a white anniversary candle and pink roses.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church fellowship hall. The bride's chosen colors were used in decorations.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth underlaid with pink. An arrangement of pink stock centered the table. A sliver bowl held an arrangement of pink roses and white daisies.

Miss Janet Whitaker and Mrs. Charles Brietz served the three tiered wedding cake. The cake was decorated with pink sugar roses and topped with a miniature bridal couple.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Gretchen Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brietz, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wilburn and Kathy, Mrs. Jewell Young, all of Little Rock; Mrs. A. J. Barfoot and Brigette and Patricia, Campbell, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry King, all of Jonesboro, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Ball, Cherry Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilmurth, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Quartermous and Denny Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Voelker, all of Bertrand; Mrs. Harlan Russell, East Prairie, Mo.; the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Burke of Charleston, Mo.; Mrs. Cerese Naile, Bertrand; Dr. and Mrs. Leo Bruce and Emily of Sikeston, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carr and Lana and Denise and Larry Watson, all of Memphis.

The couple left for a wedding trip. For travel, the new Mrs. Bethune wore a navy blue and whote suit with navy accessories. She wore a corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple is living in Bertrand.

Lay Witness, Life Renewal Services at Trinity

This weekend eight lay persons and two ministers from five states will be guests of the Trinity Baptist church for the kick-off of a lay witness week-end and life renewal mission.

The Rev. Richard Waggener, pastor of the Woodmont Baptist Church, Florence, Ala., will be the coordinator, and will preach in follow-through services Sunday through Wednesday.

The Rev. Al Carpenter, pastor of the First Baptist church, Blytheville, will share the account of his Christian experience Friday. Mr. and Mrs. James Powers, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Craddock of Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. James Clemons of Elizabethtown, Ky., and Dr. and Mrs. Greg Dickey of Cape Girardeau, will share at services, coffees, breakfasts, and luncheons their grasp as lay people of the Christian experience and its relevance for daily life.

Services at the Church from Friday through Sunday will be at 7 p.m.

Follow-through services Monday through Wednesday will be at 7:15 p.m. A men's breakfast will be held at the Rustic Rock Saturday morning at 7 a.m. and a men's luncheon at the Midtowner Saturday at noon.

Three coffees for women will be held at 411 Tanner, 712 Mimosa, and 1914 Kentucky at 10 a.m. on Saturday, and another coffee for women will be held at 810 Vernon at 3 p.m. the same day. Trinity Baptist is now meeting in its new facilities at the north edge of Sikeston on Highway 61.

Portageville Garden Club Plans Tour

PORTAGEVILLE - The Garden Club met last Thursday at 2:30 p.m. in the community room of Farmer's Bank. Twenty - three members and four guests, Harry Moreland, Frank DeGuire, James Griffin and Delcie Simmons, attended.

Mrs. Leonard Hand, president, presided.

The annual garden club tour, May 2, and the state convention in June in Springfield were discussed.

Three new members, Mrs. Ernest G. Wilson, Mrs. Henry Covey and Mrs. Margie Puckett, were welcomed.

The attendance prize, a bud vase, was won by Mrs. Preston Shaw.

The speaker was Rear Adm. Raymond Headon of Tiptonville, Tenn. He retired from the navy in 1955, after serving 38 years. He gave his views of the world situation.

Mrs. Headon displayed a tablecloth, fan and collection of dolls she obtained in her travels in the Mid East and Far East.

Hostesses, Mrs. Mary DeLisle, Mrs. Joe DeLisle and Mrs. Hubert Milem, served cake, coffee and nuts.

The next meeting will be April 4 at 2:30 p.m. in the community room of the Farmer's Bank. Leonard Hand will present the program on Missouri Community Betterment. Hostesses for that meeting will be Mrs. J. H. Workman, Sr., Mrs. Raymond Secoy, Mrs. Arthur Drerup and Mrs. Ruth Lee.

New Madrid WSCS Meets

NEW MADRID - Mrs. Bob Blom was hostess to the Methodist Woman's Society of Christian Service meeting last Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Twelve members attended.

Mrs. Harold Sloas, president, presided. Attention to the worship center, an open hand denoting five phases of prayer, was noted.

A film, "Why Methodist Women Give to Missions", depicting mission teams working in Bolivia, was shown.

Letters from Kingdom House and note of thanks from Vicki Blom were read.

A nominating committee of Mrs. Louis Evans, Mrs. D. B. Riley and Mrs. Herman Crisler, were appointed to select a slate of candidates for new officers.

Mrs. Harold Sloas was elected delegate to the spring meeting of the eastern division of the Woman's Society of Christian Service at Jefferson City, March 22 and 23. Mrs. Bill Secoy will attend as a delegate from Kewanee.

The society will buy one of two signs to be placed on the highway entering New Madrid.

Mrs. Van Sharp, program leader, reviewed the book, "That the World May Believe". She summarized the work being done in the World Council of Churches and the unity of churches. Christian unity has accomplished more in the past 25 years than in all previous years.

Mrs. Sharp closed with prayer.

The meeting was closed with the group praying the Mizpah.

Refreshments were served by the hostess during the social hour.

Mrs. Marvin Smith of Bloomfield, Garnett Ramsey of Advance, Mrs. Russell Estes of Lilbourn and Mrs. James Bell of Morley have been admitted to Southeast Missouri hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Joseph Newcomer of Bloomfield, Mrs. Ervin Dumey of Benton and Joseph Munger of Sikeston have been admitted to St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Tom Canady of New Madrid, Mary Tuschhoff of Dexter and Mrs. Alfred Asmus and son of Oran have been dismissed from Southeast Missouri hospital.

Mrs. Frank Mashek of Advance and Charles Talley of East Prairie have been dismissed from St. Francis hospital.

Everett Bone Jr. of Charleston has been discharged from St. Mary's hospital in Cairo.

Mrs. Minnie Givens of East Prairie, Mrs. Mary L. Hawes of Wyatt, Lana Duncan of Anniston and Miss Mattie Henry of Charleston have been admitted to St. Mary's hospital.

Robert Farmer and Mrs. Elzie Hoffman, both of Dexter, have been admitted to Poplar Bluff hospital.

Mrs. Ethel Dement of Dexter, Eugene Durbin of Bloomfield, Ralph Hopkins of Dexter, Mrs. Cynthia Mullesn of Bernie and Mrs. Anita Rowe of Dexter have been released from Poplar Bluff hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Jr.

Frances Catherine Brietz Marries Cecil L. Bethune Jr.

HARRISBURG, Ark. -- Miss Frances Catherine "Cathy" Brietz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brietz of Harrisburg, became the bride of Cecil Lee Bethune Jr. at 8 p.m. March 1 in the Methodist church here.

Bethune is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Sr. of Bertrand, Mo.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles W. Lewis, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Robert Burke, pastor of the Bertrand Methodist church.

White tapers in wrought iron candelabra lighted the altar which was decorated with baskets of which was decorated with baskets of white stock. Butterfly bows marked the family pews.

Mrs. Earl Whitaker was organist. The volcalist, Miss Elaine Freeman, sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length wedding gown of gardenia white chiffon taffeta and Alencon lace. The bodice featured a jeweled, lace-edged portrait neckline and bracelet-length sleeves. A miniature crystal and pearl crown secured a three tiered bouffant waist-length veil. She carried a bouqet of white roses and pompons.

Miss Linda Caplinger was maid of honor. She wore a pink crepe and lace dress. Her circular headpiece secured a pink veil. She carried a bouquet of long stemmed pink roses.

Misses Robin Hubbard and Ann Smith, cousins of the bride, lighted the altar candles. They wore pink bonded crepe dresses with lace yokes. They wore wrist corsages of feathered pink carnations.

Bethune's best man was Charles Edwin Brietz, the bride's brother. Dennis Quartermous Sr. and Danny Ray Quartermouse, cousins of the groom, were ushers. The groom's attendants' flowers were pink rose bud boutonniers. The groom's white rose bud boutonniers was taken from the bride's bouquet.

The bride's mother wore a two piece pink linen dress with pink accessories. Mrs. Bethune wore a blue dacron knit dress with bone colored accessories. Both wore white cymbidium orchid corsages.

Miss Janet Whiteaker presided at the bride's book. The book was placed on a table appointed with a white anniversary candle and pink roses.

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church fellowship hall. The bride's chosen colors were used in decorations.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth underlaid with pink. An arrangement of pink stock centered the table. A sliver bowl held an arrangement of pink roses and white daisies.

Miss Janet Whitaker and Mrs. Charles Brietz served the three tiered wedding cake. The cake was decorated with pink sugar roses and topped with a miniature bridal couple.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Gretchen Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brietz, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wilburn and Kathy, Mrs. Jewell Young, all of Little Rock; Mrs. A. J. Barfoot and Brigette and Patricia, Campbell, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry King, all of Jonesboro, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Ball, Cherry Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lee Bethune Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilmurth, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Quartermous and Denny Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Voelker, all of Bertrand; Mrs. Harlan Russell, East Prairie, Mo.; the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Burke of Charleston, Mo.; Mrs. Cerese Naile, Bertrand; Dr. and Mrs. Leo Bruce and Emily of Sikeston, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carr and Lana and Denise and Larry Watson, all of Memphis.

The couple left for a wedding trip. For travel, the new Mrs. Bethune wore a navy blue and whote suit with navy accessories. She wore a corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple is living in Bertrand.

Charlotte Foster to Marry Michael L. Miles

FLORISSANT -- Mr. and Mrs. Glenn P. Foster, 6 Alan Dale Court, announce the engagement of their daughter Charlotte to Michael L. Miles.

The bride-elect is a 1967 graduate of Hazelwood high school, and is attending Sanford-Brown Business College. Miss Foster is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mable Chism, route one, Sikeston, and Mr. and Mrs. Homer Foster, Malcolm Street, Sikeston.

The Glenn Fosters are former residents of Sikeston.

Miles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Miles, route one, Zion, Ill. He is attending Marquette University at Milwaukee, Wis., where he is a senior majoring in architecture.

The wedding will take place June 8, at the Florissant Assembly of God church, with the Rev. L. E. Shockley officiating.

South Korea has attained a sharp increase in tourism. The number of visitors each year has nearly tripled since 1965; air flights have doubled. Half a dozen modern hotels are rising and others are being improved.

Bando, Schellenberg Shine; Birds Win

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sal Bando is making it hard for the Oakland Athletics to send him to Vancouver. And Bob Schellenberg is making it hard for the Philadelphia Phillies to keep him in oblivion.

Bando smacked two homers in Oakland's 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees in their exhibition baseball game Wednesday. That makes four homers for the young third baseman in two games.

Bando hit only nine homers all last year in 116 games with the Athletics' Vancouver farm club. In 41 contests with the big league club he went homerless.

Schellenberg's story is something else again. His grand-slam homer Wednesday was the big blow in the Phillies' 8-0 triumph over Houston. It was his second time at bat during the spring, his second homer and raised his RBI total to seven.

In his first time up Sunday, Schellenberg, who isn't even on the Phillies' roster, hit a three-run homer.

In other games Wednesday, Cleveland edged San Francisco 6-5, the Chicago Cubs took California 5-4, St. Louis beat Detroit 6-2, Washington nudged Minnesota 5-4 and Los Angeles outlasted the New York Mets 3-2.

Also, the Chicago White Sox blanked Pittsburgh 4-0, Baltimore beat Atlanta 2-1 and Cincinnati beat Boston 5-3 in 10 innings.

Bando drove in all the Athletics' runs with a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the eighth. Jim Bouton pitched four hitless innings for the Yankees, extending his hitless streak to eight innings.

Woody Fryman, who allowed two hits in four innings, Larry Colton, who gave up no hits in three innings, and Jeff James combined for the shutout for the Phillies.

Cleveland caught the Giants in a hurry on Duke Sims' grand-slam homer in the eighth and finally won in the ninth on a double and a pair of sacrifices.

Adolfo Phillips, who had three hits for the Cubs, came up with a big one in the 10th, a single that drove in the winning run. Ted Savage had four hits for Chicago.

Phil Gagliano's two doubles paced an 11-hit attack that beat Detroit for the Cardinals. Bob Gibson and Steve Carlton handcuffed the Tigers on one hit for the first six innings.

Washington's victory, its fourth straight, came when Frank Coggins was walked in the bottom of the 10th, forcing in Bernie Allen with the winning tally.

Wes Parker drove in one run and scored another for the Dodgers who got four strong innings of pitching from Claude Osteen.

Jack Fisher, Gary Peters, Hoyt Wilhelm and Wilbur Wood held Pittsburgh scoreless while Tommy Davis cracked out three hits for the White Sox.

Don Buford's single in the 11th inning sent home the winning run for the Orioles. It was Baltimore's third straight extra-inning game.

Tommy Helms' two-run single with two out in the 10th was the margin of victory for the Reds who have now won five of their last six games. Tony Perez homered for Cincinnati.

A QUEEN and one of the original old pros each had a hand in golf milestones recently. Angel Soothcage, queen of the Lake George Winter Carnival in New York State, scoops water from the first hole of the Polar Ice Cap Tourney course, which is actually a frozen resort lake. Temperatures rose and caused some of the ice to melt, resulting in the first tournament ever postponed due to warm weather. Above, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower holds the ball he hit for his first hole-in-one on the 104-yard 13th hole at Seven Lakes Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif.

Palmer Foresees Seating for Golf Fans

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, whose blasting power and magnetic personality helped build the pro golf tour into a multimillion dollar operation, says he thinks tournament crowds in the future will be so huge that spectators will be assigned seats.

"I think we eventually will see a golf tournament set up like a baseball or football game, where the spectators buy assigned seats," Palmer said before starting his bid today in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer has won $953,777 in official prize money playing golf and harvested many times that much in businesses built from his game. He said he thinks the increased crowds will result in construction of courses designed to provide spectators with a view of most of the holes.

"I believe that courses will be built so at least every other green is around the clubhouse, and players will go out and back instead of going way around like we do now," Palmer said.

Palmer has won but one of eight tournaments this year, but his play in tuning up for this tournament has put him among the list of the favorites for the Citrus Open crown. He was the leading pro in the pro-am preliminary Wednesday with a 66.

Blue Devils Top NIT Card

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils hope to erase the disastrous memory of last year in the opening college basketball doubleheader tonight of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

The Blue Devils, 10th ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, take the court against high-scoring Oklahoma City in the second game of the twinbill. Marshall and St. Peter's of New Jersey meet in the first game.

The Blue Devils, who were not sure until last Sunday night they would get a second chance in the NIT as the Atlantic Coast Conference representative, failed in their first try last year. They lost in their first game to Southern Illinois, the eventual champion, 72-63.

Duke, 21-5, brings back third team All-American Mike Lewis, who averaged 24 points and 15 rebounds this season. Oklahoma City, 20-6, relies on honorable mention All-American Rich Travis, a 30-point average scorer.

Marshall, 17-7, and St. Peter's, 22-2, each will try to improve on last year's NIT performances.

Marshall, led by George Stone's long jump shots and 23.4-point game average, has visions of bettering its surprising fourth-place finish of 1967. St. Peter's, led by Elnardo Webster's 24.7 average, was routed by Southern Illinois last year 103-58.

Two More All-Conference Basketball Teams Announced

An all-senior first team was selected for the Bootheel conference, while four seniors and one sophomore make up the Dunklin county conference all-star squad selected by the coaches for the Kennett Daily Dunklin Democrat.

South Pemiscot dominated the selection of the Bootheel conference with two named in Lanny Tyler and Joe Allbritton while the Dunklin conference first team had players named from five of its six teams.

Allbritton was the biggest man selected for the Bootheel first team -- standing 6-1, while the other four were 5-11 and under with the smallest being Delta C-7's Joe Fox. Sport Joy of Hayti North and James Prather of Caruthersville -- both 5-11 -- were the others named.

Bill Chism of Clarkton topped the voting for the Dunklin squad -- a 6-3 senior. Joining him is Holcomb's Randall Crain, Jerry Smith of Southland, Bobby Hart of Senath-Hornersville and Malden's sophomore sensation -- Willie Wilson.

By coincidence -- North Pemiscot dominated the second team with two juniors being named in Morris Fisher and Ron Womble. Joining them is Hayti North's junior -- Jerry Stanley -- and seniors Kenneth Clark of Cooter and Jerry Watson of Delta C-7. Southland placed sophomore Ron Cude on the Dunklin second team, which was dominated by three seniors. The other underclassmen joining Cude is Danny Richardson, a junior, of Clarkton. Seniors named were John Wilson of Campbell, Carl Barker of Malden and Robert Thompson of Holcomb.

K-State, TCU May Not Be Regional Pushovers

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — You might say they are leading off with the title game in the NCAA Midwest Regional here Friday night— unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Houston and All-American Elvin Hayes vs. 9th-ranked Louisville and All-American Westley Unseld at 7 p.m., CST.

You might say it and with good reason, but that means writing off both Texas Christian and Kansas State, the unranked teams which play at 9 in Wichita's 11,000-seat Roundhouse. And that's a bit hard to do, for reasons involving history and emotion as well as logic.

No one can forget how Southern Methodist of the down-graded Southwest Conference rallied to upset Louisville 83-81 in the 1967 Midwest Regional at Kansas, then wiped out a 14-point Houston lead before going down in the closing minutes, 83-75.

And no K-State fan can forget his team's last NCAA tourney on this same court in 1964 when the unranked Wildcats knocked off highly-rated Wichita and All-American Dave Stallworth 94-86 for the Regional crown.

The logic isn't far-fetched, either. K-State has a big front line, with 6-foot-7 Earl Seyfert, 7-1 Nick Pino and long-armed 6-7 Gene Williams, who has a 9-foot reach. It's likely K-State will stick with a zone defense, largely because of the 267-pound Pino.

"We have a good chance if we can shoot well," says Tex Winter, K-State coach.

TCU's big men are 6-5, 250-pound Mickey McCarty, averaging 19.3 points and 11.9 rebounds a game, and 6-6 by 220 James Cash, 14.2 points and 11.3 rebounds. The Horned Frogs have some good outside shooters.

"This is a team with a lot of heart," says TCU Coach John Swaim. "We are not without talent, but I don't know how good that talent is."

Bando, Schellenberg Shine; Birds Win

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sal Bando is making it hard for the Oakland Athletics to send him to Vancouver. And Bob Schellenberg is making it hard for the Philadelphia Phillies to keep him in oblivion.

Bando smacked two homers in Oakland's 4-1 victory over the New York Yankees in their exhibition baseball game Wednesday. That makes four homers for the young third baseman in two games.

Bando hit only nine homers all last year in 116 games with the Athletics' Vancouver farm club. In 41 contests with the big league club he went homerless.

Schellenberg's story is something else again. His grand-slam homer Wednesday was the big blow in the Phillies' 8-0 triumph over Houston. It was his second time at bat during the spring, his second homer and raised his RBI total to seven.

In his first time up Sunday, Schellenberg, who isn't even on the Phillies' roster, hit a three-run homer.

In other games Wednesday, Cleveland edged San Francisco 6-5, the Chicago Cubs took California 5-4, St. Louis beat Detroit 6-2, Washington nudged Minnesota 5-4 and Los Angeles outlasted the New York Mets 3-2.

Also, the Chicago White Sox blanked Pittsburgh 4-0, Baltimore beat Atlanta 2-1 and Cincinnati beat Boston 5-3 in 10 innings.

Bando drove in all the Athletics' runs with a three-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the eighth. Jim Bouton pitched four hitless innings for the Yankees, extending his hitless streak to eight innings.

Woody Fryman, who allowed two hits in four innings, Larry Colton, who gave up no hits in three innings, and Jeff James combined for the shutout for the Phillies.

Cleveland caught the Giants in a hurry on Duke Sims' grand-slam homer in the eighth and finally won in the ninth on a double and a pair of sacrifices.

Adolfo Phillips, who had three hits for the Cubs, came up with a big one in the 10th, a single that drove in the winning run. Ted Savage had four hits for Chicago.

Phil Gagliano's two doubles paced an 11-hit attack that beat Detroit for the Cardinals. Bob Gibson and Steve Carlton handcuffed the Tigers on one hit for the first six innings.

Washington's victory, its fourth straight, came when Frank Coggins was walked in the bottom of the 10th, forcing in Bernie Allen with the winning tally.

Wes Parker drove in one run and scored another for the Dodgers who got four strong innings of pitching from Claude Osteen.

Jack Fisher, Gary Peters, Hoyt Wilhelm and Wilbur Wood held Pittsburgh scoreless while Tommy Davis cracked out three hits for the White Sox.

Don Buford's single in the 11th inning sent home the winning run for the Orioles. It was Baltimore's third straight extra-inning game.

Tommy Helms' two-run single with two out in the 10th was the margin of victory for the Reds who have now won five of their last six games. Tony Perez homered for Cincinnati.

A QUEEN and one of the original old pros each had a hand in golf milestones recently. Angel Soothcage, queen of the Lake George Winter Carnival in New York State, scoops water from the first hole of the Polar Ice Cap Tourney course, which is actually a frozen resort lake. Temperatures rose and caused some of the ice to melt, resulting in the first tournament ever postponed due to warm weather. Above, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower holds the ball he hit for his first hole-in-one on the 104-yard 13th hole at Seven Lakes Country Club in Palm Springs, Calif.

Palmer Foresees Seating for Golf Fans

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, whose blasting power and magnetic personality helped build the pro golf tour into a multimillion dollar operation, says he thinks tournament crowds in the future will be so huge that spectators will be assigned seats.

"I think we eventually will see a golf tournament set up like a baseball or football game, where the spectators buy assigned seats," Palmer said before starting his bid today in the Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Palmer has won $953,777 in official prize money playing golf and harvested many times that much in businesses built from his game. He said he thinks the increased crowds will result in construction of courses designed to provide spectators with a view of most of the holes.

"I believe that courses will be built so at least every other green is around the clubhouse, and players will go out and back instead of going way around like we do now," Palmer said.

Palmer has won but one of eight tournaments this year, but his play in tuning up for this tournament has put him among the list of the favorites for the Citrus Open crown. He was the leading pro in the pro-am preliminary Wednesday with a 66.

Blue Devils Top NIT Card

NEW YORK (AP) — The Duke Blue Devils hope to erase the disastrous memory of last year in the opening college basketball doubleheader tonight of the 31st National Invitation Tournament.

The Blue Devils, 10th ranked nationally in the final Associated Press poll of the season, take the court against high-scoring Oklahoma City in the second game of the twinbill. Marshall and St. Peter's of New Jersey meet in the first game.

The Blue Devils, who were not sure until last Sunday night they would get a second chance in the NIT as the Atlantic Coast Conference representative, failed in their first try last year. They lost in their first game to Southern Illinois, the eventual champion, 72-63.

Duke, 21-5, brings back third team All-American Mike Lewis, who averaged 24 points and 15 rebounds this season. Oklahoma City, 20-6, relies on honorable mention All-American Rich Travis, a 30-point average scorer.

Marshall, 17-7, and St. Peter's, 22-2, each will try to improve on last year's NIT performances.

Marshall, led by George Stone's long jump shots and 23.4-point game average, has visions of bettering its surprising fourth-place finish of 1967. St. Peter's, led by Elnardo Webster's 24.7 average, was routed by Southern Illinois last year 103-58.

K-State, TCU May Not Be Regional Pushovers

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — You might say they are leading off with the title game in the NCAA Midwest Regional here Friday night— unbeaten, No. 1-ranked Houston and All-American Elvin Hayes vs. 9th-ranked Louisville and All-American Westley Unseld at 7 p.m., CST.

You might say it and with good reason, but that means writing off both Texas Christian and Kansas State, the unranked teams which play at 9 in Wichita's 11,000-seat Roundhouse. And that's a bit hard to do, for reasons involving history and emotion as well as logic.

No one can forget how Southern Methodist of the down-graded Southwest Conference rallied to upset Louisville 83-81 in the 1967 Midwest Regional at Kansas, then wiped out a 14-point Houston lead before going down in the closing minutes, 83-75.

And no K-State fan can forget his team's last NCAA tourney on this same court in 1964 when the unranked Wildcats knocked off highly-rated Wichita and All-American Dave Stallworth 94-86 for the Regional crown.

The logic isn't far-fetched, either. K-State has a big front line, with 6-foot-7 Earl Seyfert, 7-1 Nick Pino and long-armed 6-7 Gene Williams, who has a 9-foot reach. It's likely K-State will stick with a zone defense, largely because of the 267-pound Pino.

"We have a good chance if we can shoot well," says Tex Winter, K-State coach.

TCU's big men are 6-5, 250-pound Mickey McCarty, averaging 19.3 points and 11.9 rebounds a game, and 6-6 by 220 James Cash, 14.2 points and 11.3 rebounds. The Horned Frogs have some good outside shooters.

"This is a team with a lot of heart," says TCU Coach John Swaim. "We are not without talent, but I don't know how good that talent is."

Two More All-Conference Basketball Teams Announced

An all-senior first team was selected for the Bootheel conference, while four seniors and one sophomore make up the Dunklin county conference all-star squad selected by the coaches for the Kennett Daily Dunklin Democrat.

South Pemiscot dominated the selection of the Bootheel conference with two named in Lanny Tyler and Joe Allbritton while the Dunklin conference first team had players named from five of its six teams.

Allbritton was the biggest man selected for the Bootheel first team -- standing 6-1, while the other four were 5-11 and under with the smallest being Delta C-7's Joe Fox. Sport Joy of Hayti North and James Prather of Caruthersville -- both 5-11 -- were the others named.

Bill Chism of Clarkton topped the voting for the Dunklin squad -- a 6-3 senior. Joining him is Holcomb's Randall Crain, Jerry Smith of Southland, Bobby Hart of Senath-Hornersville and Malden's sophomore sensation -- Willie Wilson.

By coincidence -- North Pemiscot dominated the second team with two juniors being named in Morris Fisher and Ron Womble. Joining them is Hayti North's junior -- Jerry Stanley -- and seniors Kenneth Clark of Cooter and Jerry Watson of Delta C-7.

Southland placed sophomore Ron Cude on the Dunklin second team, which was dominated by three seniors. The other underclassmen joining Cude is Danny Richardson, a junior, of Clarkton. Seniors named were John Wilson of Campbell, Carl Barker of Malden and Robert Thompson of Holcomb.

Bowling Party For 4-H Club

DEXTER -- The Town and Country 4-H club held its monthly meeting March 7 at Central Elementary School with 21 boys and girls and seven adult leaders participating.

The meeting opened with the pledge of allegiance to the American flag, led by Terry Reed. The pledge to the 4-H flag was led by Mark Brasier.

The group, led by Robby Mayer, sang "This Is Our Father's World." Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer.

Project groups reporting were cooking, sewing and cattle.

It was announced that the club would have a bowling party. A committee was set up to find out when to have the party. Committee members are Delmar Barks, Donald Backfisch, Cindy Welch and Mrs. Barks, adult advisor.

It was announced that 4-H Sunday should be celebrated by the club. A planning committee of Christie Garner, Terry Reed, Cathy Payne, Mark Brasier and Mrs. Brasier, adult advisor, was appointed.

Ending the meeting was a report on "Growing Plants" by Cindy Welch. A film, "How Plants Grow," was shown.

Games were played and refreshments served by Mrs. Richard Mayer and Mrs. Bill Flowers.

Castro Talks Of Bar, Club Take-Over

HAVANA (AP) — Resounding his battle cry against all private enterprise in Cuba, Prime Minister Fidel Castro declared Wednesday night the Communist party would soon take over all private bars and clubs.

In a 4½-hour speech the Cuban leader also said the 1967-68 sugar crop would fall 2.5 million metric tons short of the goal of 8 million tons, but he pledged Cuba would overcome its economic troubles. He also got in some barbs at the Soviet Union.

Dressed in his familiar green fatigues with a jacket against the cool night air, Castro said some people were living like parasites during the nation's difficult days.

"We intend to eliminate all private businesses," he told a crowd of several thousand and a nationwide radio and television audience. But as in the past he set no deadline for this.

The crowd gasped when he reported that a study of bars has shown that 41 per cent earn more than $100 a day. State agricultural workers in Cuba earn $85 a month.

Indirectly referring to the recent Russian limitation of oil to Cuba, Castro said Cuba has its own oil. "The problem is to get it out," he said. "We have to drill and drill more."

He reported that a second oil well found near Havana is twice as good as the one reported discovered a few days after Castro announced gasoline rationing Jan. 2.

Near the end of his speech Castro referred to the National Airlines plane hijacked Tuesday en route from Tampa to Miami and flown to Havana. He said it appeared three Cubans became bored with life in the United States and forced the plane to Havana. He said Cuba charged for refueling but that the National crew "talked foolishness" before returning to Miami.

It should be recalled, Castro said, that the United States has a number of Cuban ships and planes that have not been returned. He said the Swiss Embassy, which intervened in the National plane hijacking, should be interested in this.

"Egypt" in Illinois

The southern tip of Illinois is often referred to as "Egypt." Some say this name was given by early settlers who came down from the north to get grain, as travelers did in the Bible story of Joseph. Another explanation is the presence of such Egyptian names as Cairo and Thebes.

Bluff Votes New Bridge

POPLAR BLUFF - Overwhelming support of a $151,000 bond issue to build a new Vine Street bridge over Black river was voted Tuesday by Poplar Bluffians. The final unofficial count was 1,328 for and 262 against, a 5 to 1 margin. A two-thirds majority was needed.

The election culminated a drive by East Side residents and the Daily American Republic in support of the bridge issue.

The old bridge was closed to vehicles Feb. 14, 1968, by Mayor Earl C. Porter at the recommendation of Assistant City Engineer Sam Smith. The city had been warned that the bridge was dangerous because of its antiquated condition.

Use of the bridge for the past year was limited to pedestrians and cars and pickup trucks. Only pedestrians were allowed after Feb. 14.

Miss America Pageant: Royal Road to Success--or Heartbreak?

FIRST MISS AMERICA CONTEST... Beauties line up in their 1921 swimsuits (mostly longer than today's miniskirts) for the judges' inspection. Today emphasis is placed on talent and poise, but in the early contests it was all cheesecake. The affair started as a bathing beauty contest that would hopefully help fill Atlantic City hotel rooms for an extra week past the normal Labor Day end of the summer season. The winner in this bevy of beauties is Margaret Gorman, second from left.

THE GIRLS MATURE... Six former Miss Americas who got together for a reunion at the annual pageant in 1960 were, from left, Mrs. Carl Sempier, formerly Evelyn Ay, Miss Pennsylvania of 1954; Mrs. Richard P. Curran, formerly Jacque Mercer, Miss Arizona of 1949; Mrs. David Waring, formerly BeBe Shopp, Miss Minnesota of 1948; Mrs. Robin Harris, formerly Patricia Donnelly, Miss Michigan of 1939; Mrs. Carl Schaubel, formerly Ruth Malcolmson, Miss Pennsylvania of 1924, and Mrs. Victor Cahill, formerly Mrs. Margaret Gorman, Miss District of Columbia of 1921.

EDITOR'S NOTE — On the night of Sept. 9 in Atlantic City's Convention Hall a pretty young woman will burst into nervous tears and then, quickly summoning the broad smile she had worn all week, she will step into the spotlight as the new Miss America, "the dream of a million girls," as the song goes. Awaiting her is a year in the sun — with fame, wealth, and hordes of adoring men who won't get past her chaperones. But after she crowns her successor, what lies ahead for her: success, happiness, heartbreak? Can former Miss Americas tell her?

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

The sleek suburban matrons who have battled time to keep their proportions as enviable as when they smiled their way to victory at Atlantic City, the thoroughly domesticated homemakers with successful husbands and loving children, the talented young women who know how to make the title work for them — in short, the HAPPY former Miss Americas — recall their reigning year with enthusiasm or at least gratitude for its educational benefits.

A few won't talk about it at all.

"It takes years to adjust to having been Miss America," says BeBe Shopp, who held the title in 1948. Mother of four girls, she has been married for 13 years to Bayard David Waring, Lynnfield, Mass., businessman. She goes on:

"Marilyn Van Derbur and I figure it to be 10 years, and then only if one is married—for the greatest adjustment must take place between two people. But first a woman, no matter who she is, must know herself—and you can't do that overnight after having been Miss America."

Marilyn Van Derbur, a green-eyed blonde from Denver who at 20 won the title for 1958, calls the year of her reign "exciting, exhausting, glamorous, completely demanding and perhaps, most of all, a million dollar education."

Marilyn is now the happy wife of her high school sweetheart, Larry Atler, a Denver lawyer (after a brief first marriage that she calls "wrong from the beginning." She does television commercials, convention speaking and fashion show commentating. She says:

"I would not have had the career I do if I had not been Miss America. I never expected to win. Of the four of us sisters I was the one who was knock-kneed, wore braids and was in love with my horse. But I did win, and yes, in some ways, it completely changed my life. Would I do it again? Absolutely! But only once!"

THE MISS AMERICA PAGEANT (officials are touchy about its being called a contest) is the grand dame of beauty events and, by now, a living piece of Americana.

Over the years its emphasis has switched from cheesecake to poise and talent, and the rewards have moved from vaudeville bookings to a whole program of college scholarships. That, plus the firm, guiding hand of Lenora Slaughter for 32 years, has made the pageant heavily respectable, wholesome enough to attract the girl-next-door who plays the piano in Sunday School and plans to get married right after college.

What happens, then, when this all-American-type girl, after a heady year of public adulation and careful private chaperonage, is on her own in the world? How have our Miss Americas made out?

To find the answer The Associated Press conducted an informal survey, in which 27 Miss Americas participated. Almost to a woman, their replies indicated that their lives —sometimes after post-pageant tribulations—have been happy, productive, successful.

"I never dreamed life could be so blissfully happy," says Lynda Mead, Miss America of 1960, who adds she is married to a wonderful husband (Dr. John Shea Jr. of Memphis, Tenn.) and has a fine little son.

"I have been happy for the last 32 years," says Henrietta Leaver, Miss America of 1935, now Mrs. John Thomason of Columbus, Ohio. "I could ask for nothing better than I already have—a wonderful husband, home, friends and grandchildren."

"Each day I live a day of success and satisfaction," says the former Evelyn Ay, now Mrs. Carl Sempier of Berwyn, Pa., and mother of two daughters. The Miss America of 1954, engaged during her reign to Sempier, a fellow student at the University of Pennsylvania, explains: "I wrestled with the career versus marriage question for the entire Miss America year. The decision, after complete evaluation of life and what it means to me, what I wanted from it: Marriage."

"I know that I am extremely happy and if that is any criteria for success, well then, I suppose I am successful."—actress Lee Meriwether, wife of actor Frank Aletter, and mother of two small girls.

Some former Miss Americas avoid publicity because public overemphasis on their divorces has made them sensitive.

"These girls haven't done any more divorcing than anyone else," Miss Slaughter rises to their defense. "It's the usual route for a certain number, because people divorce today and they didn't in days gone by. You can't blame it on being Miss America."

The doughty Miss Slaughter is especially proud of Jacque Mercer, Miss America of 1949, because she was able to pick herself up after two quick, unsuccessful marriages in three years and go back to college, make dean's honor list, in her senior year marry the football captain, Richard P. Curran, now a Phoenix advertising executive, and make a happy life for her husband and two children, and still keep active in community and charity work.

Some are quite candid about what caused their divorce.

Jo-Carroll Dennison (Miss America of 1942) was married to actor Phil Silvers from 1945-1950. "I was immature in too many ways when in my early 20s," she says. "I didn't settle down to domesticity until I was 30. I doubt that I could have."

After working as an actress for several years she married Russell Stoneham, a television director, in 1954 "'til death'" she says, and has two young sons.

"Now I know what will make me happy, but without having worked, doing my jobs, traveling a great deal, being rich, poor again, I would have been discontent, I think. My life now is happier and more complete than I had ever hoped, and I always had great expectations."

Sharon Kay Ritchie (1956) married Don Cherry, singer and golfer, as her reign ended. They have two young sons. Now she is the wife of Kyle Rote, Hall of Fame football player and sportscaster. She says:

"Since my first husband was and is in show business he was always away from home. I was terribly lonely and didn't want to spend my life as a young woman alone. We were divorced in 1961 and are very close friends now."

Sharon Kay, who does television commercials—as so many of the former Miss Americas do these days—made her debut on Broadway in "Sweet Charity" in January, 1966. Several weeks later she quit "to the astonishment of the producers, and I am much more at peace with myself. When you're a Miss America you feel people expect you to be terribly good at something. I feel that in order to reach that I would have to sacrifice time with my family and I need the warmth and love of my family more than I need the applause of an audience."

Perhaps the best known Miss America is twice-divorced Bess Myerson (1945), who has had a blooming television career for years.

After she became Miss America, BeBe Shopp Waring recalls, "I kept in the back of my mind something Bess Myerson told me: 'Don't count on your title to get you anywhere—a door will open fast but close faster if you can't stand on your own two feet and prove yourself."

At almost 26, the oldest girl to become Miss America, Colleen Kay Hutchins 1952) says: "My career was already well on its way prior to becoming Miss America. I had graduated from the Pasadena Playhouse and was completing my doctorate in theater at the University of Utah. After my year I had a very active career on Broadway, but I felt that the title did interfere as it tended to typecast me. To me, Miss America was not the beginning, as it was with so many of the younger girls."

She has not pursued acting after marrying Dr. Ernest Vandeweghe, pediatrician at the UCLA medical school and formerly a professional basketball player with the New York Knickerbockers. They have four children.

Lee Meriwether, who played Catwoman in the Batman movie and stars in the TV series "Time Tunnel," says: "I didn't exactly want a theatrical career." The job as woman's editor on Dave Garroway's "Today" show was offered to me while I was still on tour. My father had passed away and I had become breadwinner; my younger brother was still in school. So I took the job instead of going back to college and used my Miss America scholarship to study acting in New York on the side."

Another Miss America married to an actor is, Marian McKnight (1957), wife of Gary Conway (remember him in "Burke's Law"?) and mother of Kathleen, 5. They met while students at UCLA. "When we met he didn't ask me out until weeks later. He assumed a Miss America would be swamped with dates with celebrities. . . ."

After crowning her successor, Marian says, "I wanted nothing more than to get lost and rest." Now, she adds, she has a sound marriage and a sense of personal fulfillment.

The only Miss America never to have married is actress Mary Ann Mobley (1959.) "Either I'm a devout coward or terribly wise, but I've never taken the big step. . . .I just haven't met the right one yet. When I do, I'll shout it to the world."

In an acting career the Miss America label has one drawback, Mary Ann found:

"They expect you to have no brains, talent or dedication. It's a hard attitude to fight and it takes time and good roles to prove that you're in show business for a far deeper reason than because you've had a year in the limelight.

"Success is relative and according to my standards I feel that I've been rather successful I'm having a career on my own terms and I have some good friends. The only thing that would make me happier would be to be happily married with a houseful of children."

Marilyn Buferd (1946), now on her third marriage, to Milton J. Stevens, New York industrialist, says she acted in films in Italy for six years, but "I think I've made a success because I'm happily married and have a wonderful son—wish I had more."

Jean Bartel (1943) is an internation television and travel consultant with her own show "It's a Woman's World".

Rosemary LaPlanche (1941), who was in motion pictures at age 3, complains, "Somehow, producers tend to believe beauty contest winners can't act." She is married to Harry Koplan, a television executive, and they have two teen-age children.

"I don't think they're ready to elect women to the state legislature down here," comments Mrs. John Hummel of Memphis, Tenn., formerly Barbara Walker (1947) a Republican who was squeezed out at the polls.

What others are doing: Nancy Fleming (1961) who married William F. Johnson, a Berkeley, Calif., attorney, has a baby-daughter. Marilyn Meseke (1938) widowed in 1965, married another airlines pilot, Capt. Ben. F. Rogers, last year in Miami. She has a son in the Air Force.

Frances Burke (1940), married to Philadelphia businessman, Lawrence Kenney, has four children. She wouldn't want her two daughters to enter the pageant: "There are more important things."

Beautiful Mary Catherine Campbell (1922-23) retired with her husband, Frederick S. Townley, to St. Augustine, Fla., and is painting in oil. Ruth Malcomson (1924), Mrs. Carl A. Schaubel of Chester, Pa., is busy photographing her three grandchildren.

Many of the former winners are happy to limit their post-Miss America career to acting as mistress of ceremonies for one of the 3,000 local contests or 50 state pageants each year.

Neva Jean Langley, for example, Miss America of 1953, is married to realtor William A. Fickling Jr., of Macon, Ga., whom she met in college, and mother of four children. She points out:

"My life is lived as though I was never a celebrity. I love looking back on the wonderful times I had, but I don't believe that I could successfully interject a public career with raising a family. I make about three out-of-town appearances as a former Miss America a year. This seems quite enough."

It also seems quite enough for Maria Beale Fletcher (1962) married to James H. Growdon Jr., a medical student at Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn.; for Jacquelyn Jeanne Mayer (1963), married to attorney John A. Townsend of Washington, Pa., and the mother of a young son.

Donna Axum, divorced, runs a charm school for girls in her hometown of El Dorado, Ark., and does television commercials. She reigned in 1964.

During their reign the girls can make from $75,000 to $100,000 if they accept all bookings. Vonda Kay Van Dyke (1965) made the most, $103,000.

One former Miss America says: "I feel sorry for some of my 'sisters.' Some expected so much more out of life but forgot to give along the way."

Jo-Carroll Stoneham sums up the Miss America experience this way: "Now that I am a constantly chubbier 43, people will say to strangers, 'She was a Miss America, you know' and they are almost always very impressed. When I was younger I resented that, for I wanted to impress with my MIND, but now I find it fun, and pull in my stomach muscles."

HAPPY SHOW BUSINESS FAMILY.... The Frank Aletters relax at their Granada Hills, Calif., home. Aletter stars in TV series "It's About Time." She's Lee Meriwether, Miss America of 1955, Batman's Catwoman and a nuclear biochemist in TV's "Time Tunnel." The youngsters are Kyle Kathleen (left) 7 and Lesley Anne, 3½.

"TYPICAL AMERICAN CHURCH FAMILY".... That's what St. George's Church in Dayton, Ohio, designated the Donald E. Ruhlman family shown here. Mrs. Ruhlman (seated, middle) is the former Marion Bergeron, Miss America of 1933. "I was 15 years old when I won the title," she says, "and I am now a spry 49 and not an antique as a great many may think." Daughter Donna, 25, is a schoolteacher and sons Donald, 22, and Robert, 20, are in police work.

"I don't think they're ready to elect women to the state legislature down here," comments Mrs. John Hummel of Memphis, Tenn., formerly Barbara Walker (1947) a Republican who was squeezed out at the polls.

What others are doing: Nancy Fleming (1961) who married William F. Johnson, a Berkeley, Calif., attorney, has a baby-daughter. Marilyn Meseke (1938) widowed in 1965, married another airlines pilot, Capt. Ben. F. Rogers, last year in Miami. She has a son in the Air Force.

Frances Burks (1940), married to Philadelphia businessman, Lawrence Kenney, has four children. She wouldn't want her two daughters to enter the pageant: "There are more important things."

Beautiful Mary Catherine Campbell (1922-23) retired with her husband, Frederick S. Townley, to St. Augustine, Fla., and is painting in oil. Ruth Malcomson (1924), Mrs. Carl A. Schaubel of Chester, Pa., is busy photographing her three grandchildren.

Many of the former winners are happy to limit their post-Miss America career to acting as mistress of ceremonies for one of the 3,000 local contests or 50 state pageants each year.

Neva Jean Langley, for example, Miss America of 1953, is married to realtor William A. Fickling Jr., of Macon, Ga., whom she met in college, and mother of four children. She points out:

"My life is lived as though I was never a celebrity. I love looking back on the wonderful times I had, but I don't believe that I could successfully interject a public career with raising a family. I make about three out-of-town appearances as a former Miss America a year. This seems quite enough."

It also seems quite enough for Maria Beale Fletcher (1962) married to James H. Growdon Jr., a medical student at Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn.; for Jacquelyn Jeanne Mayer (1963), married to attorney John A. Townsend of Washington, Pa., and the mother of a young son.

Donna Axum, divorced, runs a charm school for girls in her hometown of El Dorado, Ark., and does television commercials. She reigned in 1964.

During their reign the girls can make from $75,000 to $100,000 if they accept all bookings. Vonda Kay Van Dyke (1965) made the most, $103,000.

One former Miss America says: "I feel sorry for some of my 'sisters.' Some expected so much more out of life but forgot to give along the way."

Jo-Carroll Stoneham sums up the Miss America experience this way: "Now that I am a constantly chubbier 43, people will say to strangers, 'She was a Miss America, you know' and they are almost always very impressed. When I was younger I resented that, for I wanted to impress with my MIND, but now I find it fun, and pull in my stomach muscles."

A CHAIN OF HOPE AROUND THE WORLD

The amazing thing about man is his spirit. Man struggles against tremendous odds. Three quarters of the people of this earth live at or below the subsistence level. There are wars, there is oppression, and there is hunger—still the greatest single threat to life. Yet children long to grow up. Adults somehow love and seek love.

Americans have perhaps the greatest surplus energy. This may be why they are among the greatest givers. One way they "tie into" giving is through CATHOLIC RELIEF SERVICES, an amazing world-wide network that works in close co-operation with the U. S. Government's "Food for Freedom" program. Besides food, medical supplies and clothing are also distributed. The largest voluntary service in the world, CATHOLIC RELIEF SERVICES, reaches millions of needy persons in over 70 countries, without regard to religion or race. This year marks its 25th anniversary. Send your contribution to the nearest Catholic church, or mail to: Bishops' Overseas Fund, Empire State Bldg., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Elks Mark 100th

By the Associated Press

The Elks, 1,450,000 men in 2,107 lodges, spend more than $10 million a year on philanthropy, with primary concern in the field of health and special emphasis there on help for physically handicapped children.

But the organization was started with a more frivolous purpose. One hundred years ago, fifteen men, all working in the theater, got together to buy liquid refreshment for their boarding house for Sundays since New York's blue laws closed the bars on Sunday.

They called themselves the Jolly Corks, after a "cork trick" that the organizer of their good-time group, Charles Vivian, knew from his native England. A prospective member and the members each placed a cork on the bar. The new man was told that the last person to lift his cork at a signal would have to buy a round of drinks. At the signal, the candidate would snatch up his cork while the others merely placed a hand over theirs.

The candidate was then told that while he might have been the first to lift his cork, he also was the last.

After awhile, members of the group decided that they should add loftier goals to their good fellowship. When one member died, leaving his family destitute, they decided to organize more permanently, to help members who were in distress.

CHARLES VIVIAN

Changing their name, also to something more serious, brought debate between Buffaloes, for the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes in England, or Elks, after an elk head displayed in Barnum's Museum on Broadway and described as "strong in defense of its own, timorous of wrong-doing and possessing other qualities that man might emulate to his benefit." Elks won by one vote.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks name and constitution was adopted Feb. 16, 1868. From Imperial Cork, Vivian became Exalted Ruler. Purposes were to practice the four cardinal virtues of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity; to promote the welfare and enhance the happiness of the membership; to quicken the spirit of American patriotism and to cultivate good fellowship.

The lodge soon broadened its membership to include those not in the theater and philanthropy soon went beyond its own membership. The Elks, however, is still a man's organization, with no auxiliary.

The Elks, in 2,107 lodges in the 50 states, the Canal Zone, Guam, the Philippines and Puerto Rico, help crippled children, aspiring students, hospitalized veterans and many youth programs such as Scouts, Campfire, 4-H, Boys Clubs of America, Little League Baseball, etc., without regard to Elk membership, race, creed or color.

HALL OF FAMER Leon "Goose" Goslin takes it easy at 66 as operator of a marina in Bayside, N.J. Back in 1921 and continuing for next 17 years, the outfielder played baseball with the Senators, Browns and Tigers, racking up a lifetime batting average of .316.

A CHAIN OF HOPE AROUND THE WORLD

The amazing thing about man is his spirit. Man struggles against tremendous odds. Three quarters of the people of this earth live at or below the subsistence level. There are wars, there is oppression, and there is hunger—still the greatest single threat to life. Yet children long to grow up. Adults somehow love and seek love.

Americans have perhaps the greatest surplus energy. This may be why they are among the greatest givers. One way they "tie into" giving is through CATHOLIC RELIEF SERVICES, an amazing world-wide network that works in close co-operation with the U. S. Government's "Food for Freedom" program. Besides food, medical supplies and clothing are also distributed. The largest voluntary service in the world, CATHOLIC RELIEF SERVICES, reaches millions of needy persons in over 70 countries, without regard to religion or race. This year marks its 25th anniversary. Send your contribution to the nearest Catholic church, or mail to: Bishops' Overseas Fund, Empire State Bldg., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Elks Mark 100th

By the Associated Press

The Elks, 1,450,000 men in 2,107 lodges, spend more than $10 million a year on philanthropy, with primary concern in the field of health and special emphasis there on help for physically handicapped children.

But the organization was started with a more frivolous purpose. One hundred years ago, fifteen men, all working in the theater, got together to buy liquid refreshment for their boarding house for Sundays since New York's blue laws closed the bars on Sunday.

CHARLES VIVIAN

They called themselves the Jolly Corks, after a "cork trick" that the organizer of their good-time group, Charles Vivian, knew from his native England. A prospective member and the members each placed a cork on the bar. The new man was told that the last person to lift his cork at a signal would have to buy a round of drinks. At the signal, the candidate would snatch up his cork while the others merely placed a hand over theirs.

The candidate was then told that while he might have been the first to lift his cork, he also was the last.

After awhile, members of the group decided that they should add loftier goals to their good fellowship. When one member died, leaving his family destitute, they decided to organize more permanently, to help members who were in distress.

Changing their name, also to something more serious, brought debate between Buffaloes, for the Royal Antediluvian Order of Buffaloes in England, or Elks, after an elk head displayed in Barnum's Museum on Broadway and described as "strong in defense of its own, timorous of wrong-doing and possessing other qualities that man might emulate to his benefit." Elks won by one vote.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks name and constitution was adopted Feb. 16, 1868. From Imperial Cork, Vivian became Exalted Ruler. Purposes were to practice the four cardinal virtues of Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity; to promote the welfare and enhance the happiness of the membership; to quicken the spirit of American patriotism and to cultivate good fellowship.

The lodge soon broadened its membership to include those not in the theater and philanthropy soon went beyond its own membership. The Elks, however, is still a man's organization, with no auxiliary.

The Elks, in 2,107 lodges in the 50 states, the Canal Zone, Guam, the Philippines and Puerto Rico, help crippled children, aspiring students, hospitalized veterans and many youth programs such as Scouts, Campfire, 4-H, Boys Clubs of America, Little League Baseball, etc., without regard to Elk membership, race, creed or color.

HALL OF FAMER Leon "Goose" Goslin takes it easy at 66 as operator of a marina in Bayside, N.J. Back in 1921 and continuing for next 17 years, the outfielder played baseball with the Senators, Browns and Tigers, racking up a lifetime batting average of .316.

Ann Landers

Personal Questions Can Be Cast Off

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who lives next door has a long nose which she loves to stick in other people's business. I have disliked this woman ever since I was a little girl.

I have been married for over a year and am about eight weeks pregnant. Every time Mrs. Long nose sees me she pats my stomach and says, "Anything in the oven yet?" She makes me so mad I'd like to belt her in the mouth. Yesterday when she pulled that "oven bit" I managed, miraculously, to keep my temper and say sweetly. .."No, nothing. .."

Soon I will have to tell people I am expecting but I want to do it in my own way, and not be backed into a corner by a nosy neighbor.

How can I avoid answering a direct question? --- BURNED

Dear B: You are under no obligation to answer personal questions. Simply evade the question by saying, "When I am ready to make an announcement, you'll know." Then change the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a nursing home and there are some wonderful old folks out here. The Christmas holidays are the happiest time of the year because plants and flowers and gifts and cards and visitors come pouring in. Everyone is in a good mood. The ailing seem to perk up and we have fewer patients confined to their beds at Christmas than any other time.

But the holiday spirit soon wears off and this is what I am writing about. Why don't children whose parents are in nursing homes give a moment's though to these folks during the other eleven months of the year? If it weren't for Christmas and Mother's Day it's as if nobody knows they are alive.

One frail little woman who has three sons and a daughter living within 40 miles of here has been re-reading the same two letters since last August. The whole family piles in on Christmas Day and then she doesn't see or hear from anyone until her birthday-seven months later. I feel so sorry for this sweet old woman that I have asked my own children to visit her.

If I see this letter in print I will feel better. Thank you. --- CHICAGO.

Dear Chi: So will I, and here it is. Guilty sons and daughters might feel worse, however, but if they get the message, that's all right with me.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever we go to a party my wife has the idea I should spent the whole evening entertaining her. If I should walk off for five minutes to talk to someone she gets a hurt expression on her face. Then she is upset the remainder of the night and nobody has a good time.

When we got home last evening she gave me a long lecture on how it looks to other people when a man ignores his own wife and plays up to younger women. Bla bla bla bla. ..Finally I walked into the other room and started to read the paper. She came in after me, grabbed the paper out of my hand and shouted, "You deserve a wife like Ann Landers."

What do you think she meant by that? ---FEET OF CLAY

Dear Feet: Under the circumstances I don't think her remark was much of a compliment to either of us. But I'll forgive her if you will.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

March 14, 1918

Mrs. Claude Gill and family will leave next Sunday for Nowata, Okla., where they expect to make their home. Mr. Gill has been there for some time and has employment there.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baker, February 25th, a son.

Miss Nell Brown of Columbus, Ky., arrived here Thursday of last week to accept a position in the bookkeeping department of the Scott County Milling Co.'s office. She went to work Monday.

The old frame building in the Railroad Park formerly occupied by the Scott County Milling Co., for its office, has been purchased by Levi Cook, who is tearing it down and moving it off the lot. The lot is owned by the Railroad company and must be vacated. The removal of the old building will be a great improvement, as this was the only building in the park.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Renner entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of the second birth anniversary of their daughter, Mary Liz.

Two of Sikeston's long-promised traffic lights went up Tuesday on Malone avenue at New Madrid and at Stoddard streets, erected by municipal light plant employes.

Big kites, little kites, flat kites, box kites -- the air was full of them at the airport Wednesday afternoon as 20 boys put their prides and joys in the air for the big contest promoted by V. L. Knepper of the high school faculty. The grand prize, a five-foot specially constructed box kite, went to Archie Cook in the senior division. In the same division Robert Macon had a kite five inches high and took the price for the smallest kite because of its flying ability. Gene Weldon's 3-stick flat kite, about seven feet high took the prize for the best flyer in the sernior group and Bill Taylor had the most novel kite -- the image of a boy, with head, trousers, jacket and all painted on it. A joint-owned kite of Billy Sikes and Larry Shain took the prize for the best flyer in the junior division. Eugene Cope's 3-stick flat kite five foot high took the prize for the largest in the young boys' group and Charles Proffer won the small - kite prize with a 3-stick affair three inches high.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The success of any educational program is dependent upon the effect that a teacher has on an individual child. All other aspects of the program, including administration, supervision, the special services such as: school lunches, transportation, etc. and the school building plant are necessary to provide a favorable environment in which the teacher-pupil relationship can properly function, but a good teacher and a receptive student are obviously basic to good education.

A good teacher is one who knows how to teach, understands and appreciates children and is willing to put in the intensive effort required in this very exacting profession. There are not enough good teachers to fill all the classrooms of America. In our competitive society, good teachers should be adequately paid. Paid in relation to the training and skills required to become teachers, to the requirements of time, devotion and energy required to teach and in a competitive relationship with other vocations requiring approximately the same training and professional skill. In most cases this is not being done. Most Missouri school teacher salaries are lower than the national average in Sikeston Schools.

Although the beginning salary schedule for our teachers has increased by exactly $1,000 since 1964-65 and a beginning teacher, with no experience, is placed on the schedule at $5,300 and may, with additional graduate degrees and years of experience, advance to $7,200, this is far too low for the responsibilities which their position carries, to say nothing of the importance of the tasks which they perform. While our Board of Education has, by virtue of careful planning, been able to make reasonable increases, these and larger increases must continue in the future if we are to maintain the same quality faculty which the school now has. To do so will require more state or federal funds, as real and personal property, the only source of taxation directly available to the community, is bearing about as much of the tax burden as it reasonably can.

The continued improvement of teachers' salaries is a responsibility of all citizens who are interested in good education. It is the single most important factor in the improvement and maintenance of good schools for our children.

It is reported that, during the recent bad stretch of weather, when it was necessary to discontinue school for a couple of days, a harassed mother called one of the principals and threatened to "burn her P.T.A. card" unless school was resumed immediately.

.....

There were 55,940 school lunches served in January by the food service department. Of these, 51,904 were type "A" lunches which includes the approved nutritional elements required in a well-balanced meal for growing youngsters. The others were ala carte lunches or optional food items selected by students at Senior High School.

.....

Demonstrating the need for a broad general education, regardless of the vocation, most university business schools are placing more stress on liberal arts courses and less on strict business classes. For example: Washington University in St. Louis, with a strong business education curriculum, is limiting its business students to only 48 credit hours in business and business related courses. The remainder of the normal 120 hours required for a degree must be in liberal arts or other courses designed to emphasize the broader concepts of liberal education. Corporation executives, involved in the selection and employment of business and school graduates, enthusiastically endorse this new program.

One executive said, "When we hire someone, we first look at the person -- not necessarily at the particular skills he has acquired in college. For instance, courses in retailing may give an individual a faster start simply because he understands terminology and what we are doing. But eventually a person will advance to the level of his total ability and understanding."

Even the military service academies are devoting less time to technical military courses and more to a broader general educatin. The same thing is happening in professional education, i.e.: teaching or educational administration. Fewer professional education courses and more liberal arts subjects are a trend.

The next school break will be at Easter. Vacation for students will begin at the close of school Wednesday, April 10th and classes will resume Tuesday, April 16th.

Silverthorn, Oran, is shown with Mrs. Elvis Presley and daughter, Lisa Marie, in the Baptist Memorial hospital in Memphis as the Presleys prepare to leave the hospital. Men's Garden Club Meets At Babers

The Men's Garden club met at the Buford Baber home.

George Kirk, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Baber gave the program. He showed a film, "The Care of Lawns."

The Rev. Pipes Jones suggested that the club enlarge the rose garden along the railroad parkway downtown.

The Baber home was decorated with arrangements of branches of spring blooming bushes.

Refreshments were served.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Now, produce fruits that answer to your repentance.

PRAYER: Though our sins be as scarlet, O Father, Tho canst make them as white as snow. Pardon our past mistakes and give us greater strength and determination to live up to Jesus' perfect example today and in the days to come. In his name we ask it, as we pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . .Amen."

Activists Warned to Pay Their Own Way

ST. LOUIS (AP)-- A St. Louis University faculty member cautioned student activists Tuesday night they must take steps to pay their own way through college before demanding a greater voice in operation of their school.

A small group of students attending a meeting that was called to protest the expulsion of a Communist speaker from the campus decided students should be installed on the Board of Trustees.

Washington University, another St. Louis institution, announced recently the appointment of several students to its governing board.

About 50 persons attended the Tuesday night meeting, sponsored by the University Action Committee.

The Rev. Patrick McAnany, one of six faculty members at the meeting, said he would not argue that the university was right in expelling the speaker.

But the priest, an assistant professor of law, counseled the students to make themselves financially independent if they want to express themselves freely.

"We're going to have to have a system where you pay for your own education," Father McAnany said. "Ordinarily, it's your parents, the state or the university through a scholarship" who pay the bills.

Motel Not Responsible For Diving Accidents

Wilbur liked bathing beauties but he never got to bathe one. He did, however, get to dunk one. While staying at a motel, he raced to the side of the swimming pool and arched into a beautiful dive. And, while he sailed through the air with the greatest of ease, he unfortunately landed on Louise.

Glub-glubbing to the surface of the pool, Louise managed to climb poolside before toppling groggily back into the water. When finally rescued, she sued the owner of the motel for personal injuries.

"It was his duty to protect patrons using his pool against flying men," she complained in court. "When Wilbur landed on me, I thought for sure I was in for a watery grave."

"I don't run an airport," retorted the motel owner. "I'm an innkeeper. If a guest suddenly takes to the air, it's not my fault.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the motel owner to pay for Louise's having been scuttled?

This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that a motel owner cannot be held responsible for diving accidents that he cannot anticipate and which occur without prior warning.

Personal Questions Can Be Cast Off

Dear Ann Landers: The woman who lives next door has a long nose which she loves to stick in other people's business. I have disliked this woman ever since I was a little girl.

I have been married for over a year and am about eight weeks pregnant. Every time Mrs. Long nose sees me she pats my stomach and says, "Anything in the oven yet?" She makes me so mad I'd like to belt her in the mouth. Yesterday when she pulled that "oven bit" I managed, miraculously, to keep my temper and say sweetly. .."No, nothing. .."

Soon I will have to tell people I am expecting but I want to do it in my own way, and not be backed into a corner by a nosy neighbor.

How can I avoid answering a direct question? --- BURNED

Dear B: You are under no obligation to answer personal questions. Simply evade the question by saying, "When I am ready to make an announcement, you'll know." Then change the subject.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in a nursing home and there are some wonderful old folks out here. The Christmas holidays are the happiest time of the year because plants and flowers and gifts and cards and visitors come pouring in. Everyone is in a good mood. The ailing seem to perk up and we have fewer patients confined to their beds at Christmas than any other time.

But the holiday spirit soon wears off and this is what I am writing about. Why don't children whose parents are in nursing homes give a moment's though to these folks during the other eleven months of the year? If it weren't for Christmas and Mother's Day it's as if nobody knows they are alive.

One frail little woman who has three sons and a daughter living within 40 miles of here has been re-reading the same two letters since last August. The whole family piles in on Christmas Day and then she doesn't see or hear from anyone until her birthday-seven months later. I feel so sorry for this sweet old woman that I have asked my own children to visit her.

If I see this letter in print I will feel better. Thank you. --- CHICAGO.

Dear Chi: So will I, and here it is. Guilty sons and daughters might feel worse, however, but if they get the message, that's all right with me.

Dear Ann Landers: Whenever we go to a party my wife has the idea I should spent the whole evening entertaining her. If I should walk off for five minutes to talk to someone she gets a hurt expression on her face. Then she is upset the remainder of the night and nobody has a good time.

When we got home last evening she gave me a long lecture on how it looks to other people when a man ignores his own wife and plays up to younger women. Bla bla bla bla. ..Finally I walked into the other room and started to read the paper. She came in after me, grabbed the paper out of my hand and shouted, "You deserve a wife like Ann Landers."

What do you think she meant by that? ---FEET OF CLAY

Dear Feet: Under the circumstances I don't think her remark was much of a compliment to either of us. But I'll forgive her if you will.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a self - addressed, stamped envelope.

March 14, 1918

Mrs. Claude Gill and family will leave next Sunday for Nowata, Okla., where they expect to make their home. Mr. Gill has been there for some time and has employment there.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baker, February 25th, a son.

Miss Nell Brown of Columbus, Ky., arrived here Thursday of last week to accept a position in the bookkeeping department of the Scott County Milling Co.'s office. She went to work Monday.

The old frame building in the Railroad Park formerly occupied by the Scott County Milling Co., for its office, has been purchased by Levi Cook, who is tearing it down and moving it off the lot. The lot is owned by the Railroad company and must be vacated. The removal of the old building will be a great improvement, as this was the only building in the park.

Two of Sikeston's long-promised traffic lights went up Tuesday on Malone avenue at New Madrid and at Stoddard streets, erected by municipal light plant employes.

Big kites, little kites, flat kites, box kites -- the air was full of them at the airport Wednesday afternoon as 20 boys put their prides and joys in the air for the big contest promoted by V. L. Knepper of the high school faculty. The grand prize, a five-foot specially constructed box kite, went to Archie Cook in the senior division. In the same division Robert Macon had a kite five inches high and took the price for the smallest kite because of its flying ability. Gene Weldon's 3-stick flat kite, about seven feet high took the prize for the best flyer in the sernior group and Bill Taylor had the most novel kite -- the image of a boy, with head, trousers, jacket and all painted on it. A joint-owned kite of Billy Sikes and Larry Shain took the prize for the best flyer in the junior division. Eugene Cope's 3-stick flat kite five foot high took the prize for the largest in the young boys' group and Charles Proffer won the small - kite prize with a 3-stick affair three inches high.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The success of any educational program is dependent upon the effect that a teacher has on an individual child. All other aspects of the program, including administration, supervision, the special services such as: school lunches, transportation, etc. and the school building plant are necessary to provide a favorable environment in which the teacher-pupil relationship can properly function, but a good teacher and a receptive student are obviously basic to good education.

A good teacher is one who knows how to teach, understands and appreciates children and is willing to put in the intensive effort required in this very exacting profession. There are not enough good teachers to fill all the classrooms of America. In our competitive society, good teachers should be adequately paid. Paid in relation to the training and skills required to become teachers, to the requirements of time, devotion and energy required to teach and in a competitive relationship with other vocations requiring approximately the same training and professional skill. In most cases this is not being done. Most Missouri school teacher salaries are lower than the national average in Sikeston Schools.

Although the beginning salary schedule for our teachers has increased by exactly $1,000 since 1964-65 and a beginning teacher, with no experience, is placed on the schedule at $5,300 and may, with additional graduate degrees and years of experience, advance to $7,200, this is far too low for the responsibilities which their position carries, to say nothing of the importance of the tasks which they perform. While our Board of Education has, by virtue of careful planning, been able to make reasonable increases, these and larger increases must continue in the future if we are to maintain the same quality faculty which the school now has. To do so will require more state or federal funds, as real and personal property, the only source of taxation directly available to the community, is bearing about as much of the tax burden as it reasonably can.

The continued improvement of teachers' salaries is a responsibility of all citizens who are interested in good education. It is the single most important factor in the improvement and maintenance of good schools for our children.

It is reported that, during the recent bad stretch of weather, when it was necessary to discontinue school for a couple of days, a harassed mother called one of the principals and threatened to "burn her P.T.A. card" unless school was resumed immediately.

.....

There were 55,940 school lunches served in January by the food service department. Of these, 51,904 were type "A" lunches which includes the approved nutritional elements required in a well-balanced meal for growing youngsters. The others were ala carte lunches or optional food items selected by students at Senior High School.

.....

Demonstrating the need for a broad general education, regardless of the vocation, most university business schools are placing more stress on liberal arts courses and less on strict business classes. For example: Washington University in St. Louis, with a strong business education curriculum, is limiting its business students to only 48 credit hours in business and business related courses. The remainder of the normal 120 hours required for a degree must be in liberal arts or other courses designed to emphasize the broader concepts of liberal education. Corporation executives, involved in the selection and employment of business and school graduates, enthusiastically endorse this new program.

One executive said, "When we hire someone, we first look at the person -- not necessarily at the particular skills he has acquired in college. For instance, courses in retailing may give an individual a faster start simply because he understands terminology and what we are doing. But eventually a person will advance to the level of his total ability and understanding."

Even the military service academies are devoting less time to technical military courses and more to a broader general educatin. The same thing is happening in professional education, i.e.: teaching or educational administration. Fewer professional education courses and more liberal arts subjects are a trend.

.....

The next school break will be at Easter. Vacation for students will begin at the close of school Wednesday, April 10th and classes will resume Tuesday, April 16th.

Men's Garden Club Meets At Babers

The Men's Garden club met at the Buford Baber home.

George Kirk, secretary-treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Baber gave the program. He showed a film, "The Care of Lawns."

The Rev. Pipes Jones suggested that the club enlarge the rose garden along the railroad parkway downtown.

The Baber home was decorated with arrangements of branches of spring blooming bushes.

Refreshments were served.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Now, produce fruits that answer to your repentance.

PRAYER: Though our sins be as scarlet, O Father, Tho canst make them as white as snow. Pardon our past mistakes and give us greater strength and determination to live up to Jesus' perfect example today and in the days to come. In his name we ask it, as we pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . . .Amen."

Activists Warned to Pay Their Own Way

ST. LOUIS (AP)-- A St. Louis University faculty member cautioned student activists Tuesday night they must take steps to pay their own way through college before demanding a greater voice in operation of their school.

A small group of students attending a meeting that was called to protest the expulsion of a Communist speaker from the campus decided students should be installed on the Board of Trustees.

Washington University, another St. Louis institution, announced recently the appointment of several students to its governing board.

About 50 persons attended the Tuesday night meeting, sponsored by the University Action Committee.

The Rev. Patrick McAnany, one of six faculty members at the meeting, said he would not argue that the university was right in expelling the speaker.

But the priest, an assistant professor of law, counseled the students to make themselves financially independent if they want to express themselves freely.

"We're going to have to have a system where you pay for your own education," Father McAnany said. "Ordinarily, it's your parents, the state or the university through a scholarship" who pay the bills.

Cadette Girl Scout Troop 159 Visits St. Louis

Cadette Girl Scout Troop 159 has returned from a two-day overnight chartered bus trip to St. Louis.

The troop this year is working on the challenge of active citizenship badge. The troop consists of 37 girls from seventh, eighth, and ninth grades and five adult leaders and trip was taken by all 42 members.

They traveled to Chester Ill., and toured Menard, an Illinois State Prison.

From there the group went on to the federal court building in St. Louis and witnessed the naturalization of 43 citizens to the United States from foreign countries. The girls and leaders of the troop went to the Riverfront Memorial and rode to the top of the Gateway Arch, visited the old cathedral and the old court house.

The group was taken by the bus to a pizza specialty restaurant for dinner and to the downtown YWCA for lodging. The next morning the bus picked the group up and went to Lambert municipal airport for breakfast and a look at activities there. From the airport the troop visited the major St. Louis county shopping center.
